STATE SAYS THIS BOY KILLED HIS OWN FATHER

"The government contends that the prisoner became angered by this warning that his father had left upon the slate, and that he went to Mrs. McCarthy's, and there got the key to the bureau drawer, that he took a pistol and not a book from that draw, that he pulled down the window shades in the kitchen, and that as soon as his father opened the door the prisone rshot him down."—From the address to the jury by Assistant District Attorney Henry C. Atwill.

PROSECUTOR DECLARES MEIKLE 'BOY PLANNED KILLING"

State Will Attempt to Show That Lad Shot Father as the Latter Entered His Home, Scared by Threat to Have Boy Arrested, Says Counsel.

That Edgar Weston Meikle planned the murder of his father at their Lynn home on November 7, 1905, and that the boy (then fourteen years old) shot him just as he stepped into the house when he came home from work to his dinner, is the contention of the State as outlined to-day in the Superior Criminal Court of Salem, where the boy is on trial for his life before a jury.

The address to the jury was made by Assistant District Attorney Henry C. Atwill. He showed that the State has worked up a very circumstantial case. He indicated that the principal witness upon whom they will depend to send the boy to the electric chair is Thomas Carroll. Speaking of this witness, he said:

"SHOT AS HE ENTERED DOOR."

"We will produce a witness by the name of Carroll, who preceded Meikle, being about ten feet in advance, as Meikle turned into his yard. Carroll continued and turned into the next house, the one we showed you yesterday, and as he arrived he heard a pistol shot, which will show that Meikle was shot and fell forward almost instantly after he arrived at his door.

The motive for the alleged murder, according to the State, was found in the fact that Edgar had been absent from school sixteen days in September and October, and every day in November up to the Tuesday of the tragedy. On that day the boy's father wrote on a slate an order for Edgar to go to school and get his card from the teacher and also to remain in the house after that or HIS FATHER WOULD HAVE HIM ARRESTED.

"OPENED HIS FATHER'S LETTER."

About 11 o'clock that forenoon, the assistant district attorney declared, a letter was delivered at the house which the boy got and although it was addressed to his father Edgar opened it. The letter was from the boy's teacher and asked if Edgar had quit school for good.

After the boy got this letter, it is claimed, he hurried to the home of Jerry McCarthy and asked for the key to the

REDMOND DENOUNCES THE HOME RULE BILL

IRISH LEADER DECLARES IT INADEQUATE AT OPENING OF DUBLIN MEETING.

DUBLIN, May 21.—The Irish council bill, offered in Parliament recently by Chief Secretary for Ireland Birrell, as the Liberal government's first concession toward granting home rule, was roundly condemned to-day before the Irish National convention by John E. Redmond, president of the convention and leader of the Irish party in Parliament.

Redmond declared the bill is inadequate and unsatisfactory to the Irish. He moved its rejection and condemnation by the new convention.

It was predicted this action would cause the convention to reject the bill which would probably doom it before Parliament. The story is unanimously opposed to the measure.

Fully 2,000 delegates attended the opening of the national convention to-day. Richard Croker was one of the prominent guests. Redmond presided over the deliberations. Members of the young Irish men party hotfoot before the convention opened that resolutions calling on the government to redeem the pledges to the Irish in some substantial way should be adopted.

Every Irish leader is present, the Redmonds, "Tay Pay" O'Connor, Tim Healey and the Irish members of Parliament, with many men from the United States as Dr. P. J. Timmins, T. J. Fitzpatrick and John F. Callaghan from Boston.

The provisions of the bill are as follows: An Irish national council is to be established in Dublin, consisting of 82 elected members and 24 members nominated by the king in the first instance and afterward by the Lord Lieutenant. (The Irish Under Secretary to be a member of the council ex-officio.)

Irish members will continue to sit at Westminster. Eight departments will be brought at once under the control of the new council. These are:

Local government board, agricultural and technical instruction, congested districts board, commissioner of public works, commissioners of national education, reformatory and industrial schools inspectors, registrar-general's office, and the intermediate education board.

The following departments would not be affected by the bill: The Supreme Court of Judicature, the Royal Irish Constabulary, the Dublin Metropolitan Police, the Land Commission, the General Prisons Board.

The final authority of the Imperial Parliament is maintained by the power of the lord lieutenant to reserve questions for consideration. A new execution department will be set up.

An Irish treasury will be established, and an addition of £350,000 will be granted to the sum of about £2,000,000 now available for the eight departments to be transferred. Other funds will bring the amount to about £4,000,000 for the first year.

The office of lord lieutenant is to be held without reference to religious belief.

THE WEATHER.

Fair and continued cool, with local frosts to-night. Wednesday, fair, with rising temperature. Light west winds.

SHOE MACHINERY MONEY FOR PUBLISHERS IN LEGISLATURE

Representatives Use Paid Advertisements as News Matter; Would Like to Get More.

John Cole of Andover, Speaker of the Massachusetts House of Representatives, is not the only member of that body who takes money from the United Shoe Machinery Company, now vitally interested in the bill which will be voted upon to-morrow.

The speaker has been making money out of a printing contract with the Shoe Machinery Trust. He has been doing a lot of work for the Trust in his printing plant at Andover. Shoe Machinery money has probably helped him to build a fine business block.

Representative Frank G. Bayrd of Malden has also been getting some of the Shoe Machinery money. Bayrd is the publisher and principal owner of the Malden Evening News, which on Friday printed an article of editorial head: "Thousands of Wage Earners Enter Protest." The story was sub-headed "Passage of the Shoe Machinery Bill a Menace to Labor."

There was nothing about the article printed in Representative Bayrd's paper to warn the reader that it was an advertisement. Instead, it appeared in the news columns, in news type, and among other things it said:

"If this bill should become a law it would mean that this company would be forced to leave Massachusetts and seek residence in some other State, where its interests would not be interfered with at the behest of some hungry politician or some one individual with a mercenary motive and seeking only the attainment of his own selfish ends."

In almost the next paragraph, readers of Representative Frank G. Bayrd's Malden Evening News were urged, apparently by the editor, to communicate with their representative and "urge upon him the wisdom of voting against this obnoxious bill, which has been declared unconstitutional by Chief Justice Knowlton and Associate Justice Morton of the Massachusetts Supreme Court."

Silent About Majority Decision.

Nothing was said in the Malden Evening News to suggest the fact that a majority of the Supreme Court—five to two—have declared the bill constitutional.

The Malden Evening News article was paid for by the United Shoe Machinery Company. Representative Frank G. Bayrd, publisher of the Malden Evening News, admits it. This is what he has to say about it:

"The business came from the O'Keefe Advertising Agency, and of course it was accepted just as any other advertising would be. Why wasn't it designated in some way as an advertisement? Oh, that was merely an oversight. I noticed on Saturday that it was not so designated, and I arranged at once to have a couple of rules under it to-day, to indicate that it is not regular news matter.

"Do I see any impropriety in running the work while I am a member of the Legislature and about to vote on the bill? Certainly not. While I am practically the owner of the News, there are, as a matter of fact, other shareholders, and I hardly consider that, in justice to them, I could have refused the Shoe Machinery Company's business. I haven't made up my mind how I shall vote on the bill. I want to hear all the arguments. As a matter of

CAPTAIN MORTON ELECTED.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 21.—At the national convention of the regular Army and Navy Union, Captain J. B. Morton of Washington was elected national commander. A message of good will was sent to the President.

TEAMSTER EXECUTIVE BOARD STRIKES AT HUGO

BAN ON BEER BOTTLED BY MEN'S OPPONENT GOES INTO EFFECT.

The executive board of the Teamsters' District Council, representing a membership of 18,000, to-day started its protest against President George B. Hugo of the Employers' Association for his activity in opposing the strike when the request was sent out to all teamsters to refrain from using the products of two breweries that are boiled by Mr. Hugo.

The breweries are Houghton's and Reuter's. Mr. Hugo's bottling establishment takes care of a large part of the Vienna lager from Houghton's and Sterling ale from Reuter's. Because he does this both the teamsters have decided that the members of the union shall refrain from using either of the beers as long as Hugo ceases to do the work.

In reply to a question as to whether or not such action of the teamsters would injure his business or change his attitude toward the striking teamsters, President Hugo said:

"When I get ready to strike back they will know it."

BR-R-R! FROST TONIGHT, SAYS WEATHER MAN

Frost to-night!

If you have any budding plants out in your yard, any tender young vegetables or other delicate growths, cover them up well to-night, for it's going to be cold. So says the weather man. Here is his forecast:

"Fair and continued cold, with local frost to-night. Wednesday fair, with rising temperature. Light westerly winds."

When Miss Boston came down to-day in her peek-a-boo waist and low-cut shoes she shivered with the cold. She will shiver more when she goes home this evening. The man who loafed out without his rubbers said, "Gee, but it's cold!" It was cold in the morning hours. During the night the temperature went down to 40 degrees above zero.

Dispatches from New York report a temperature of 43 degrees at 6 a. m., dropping to 41 degrees by 9 a. m.

MEN OF MAYO WILL MEET TO HONOR DAVITT

Nearly every member of the Irish county clubs in Boston will be present at the demonstration to be held under the auspices of the Men of Mayo, in honor of the memory of Michael Davitt, in Wells Memorial building on Monday evening next.

Every speaker will be former resident of that part of Ireland, all of whom are well versed in the life and character of Michael Davitt. President Joseph J. Thornton of the Men of Mayo will preside.

Charles Forrester, renowned all over the State as an authority on Irish music, who is a member of the Dublin Association, will furnish special musical talent, while Owen Needham will direct the plays of the Fife, Drum and Bugle Corps of the 55, A. O. H., which will only be present with Irish and American airs.

'MY HAYWOOD CONFESSION IS FALSE'-ADAMS

Chief Witness Against Miners Declares His Story of Intrigue Was Extorted.

WELLS BRINGS PRESSURE

BOISE, Idaho, May 21.—General Buckley Wells's purpose in hastening to the scene of the trial of Haywood, Moyer and Pettibone, accused of the murder of former Governor Steunenberg is declared to be to bolster up "Steve" Adams and bring the witness back to conformity with the wishes of the prosecution.

It is claimed that Adams has repudiated in full his alleged confession of complicity in intrigue spreading the mantle of guilt and added evidence to the defence that will make the introduction of the alleged confession a boomerang to the State.

"Extorted," He Cries.

Since Wells's arrival he has paid frequent and long visits to Adams in his cell at Wallace, Idaho, where Adams is held on the charge of murdering a man named Taylor. Adams, according to stories from the side of the defence, made his confession when he thought he was friendless, deserted by the world and penniless. After friends penetrated the jail guard over him, told him he still had adherents with sympathy and money, he told the truth and declared, so it is claimed here, that officials had forced him to relate untruths, as they held over his head the circumstances connected with the Taylor killing.

"The confession," says Adams, "was extorted from me with threats. I knew that if I didn't acquiesce I'd be indicted with McParland, Gooding and Warden Whitney they would railroad me to the gallows."

Put Under Pressure.

Wells saw Adams in jail, and urged him to go back to his original story. Pressure and threats are reported to have been used to no avail. Detectives gathered here discuss the incident freely, and profess to show that Wells is greatly angered at his failure to bring Adams around to his view of the situation. This so-called confession of Adams, it is believed, was the principal confirmatory evidence needed to convict the miners' officials. It is claimed that this evidence was direct and positive. Now the State will likely be confined to Orchard's confession and circumstantial evidence.

There are still four men in the jury box who stated on examination that they were opposed to conviction on circumstantial evidence unless it was absolutely indisputable.

Prosecution's Case.

After talking with officials of the court, representatives of both sides at issue, with citizens, witnesses and all interested, the AMERICAN'S correspondent is able to give an outline of the prosecution's case, which has heretofore been carefully guarded.

Caldwell witnesses will prove the murder and offer testimony to show Orchard's connection with the crime. Orchard will tell the story of the alleged "inner circle" of conspirators in the Western Federation of Miners. The former members of the federation's executive committee, their names held secret by the State, will also be implicated in Orchard's confession.

Telegrams passed between the Federation and its agents will be offered as evidence, the prosecution claiming that they will corroborate Orchard's testimony.

"Sinners Not Miners."

The attorney for the defence says:

"If there is to be a general uncovering of all the troubles in the mining states we will take a hand. We will ask the prosecution, 'What of the 51 men killed by direct command of the mine owners?' We will show that all the sinners were not in the Western Federation of Miners."

Starting off with that as the central centre drawn in the case, it was plain today that before adjournment this afternoon an enforced recess would be necessary while another panel is being drawn. At the opening of the case this morning the prosecution had four and the defence five peremptory challenges unused.

SECRET MOVE TO GET PARDON FOR PROCTOR?

Robert G. Proctor, former secretary of Senator Lodge, convicted of stealing a $225 campaign contribution, and facing ten months imprisonment, has been given another week to appear for sentence before his bail is declared forfeited. Surprise at this leniency has stirred up much comment to-day, and those who have followed the now notorious case see in it another move by the powerful interests which have worked intermittingly in Proctor's interests since the case was first opened.

That there are influences quietly at work to secure a pardon for Proctor, so that he will not be forced to go to jail in all in the event of his reappearance, is now openly asserted.

The announcement is also made that Proctor's bail, which is now signed by Surveyor Jeremiah McCarthy and Daniel H. Lane, being the bondsmen, will be forfeited. Should the effort to secure a pardon fail, it is predicted that Proctor will simply go by default, that Proctor will keep in hiding, the $500 will become the property of the State and the case allowed to drop.

Assistant District Attorney Dwyer, who is acting during the illness of District Attorney Morrah, was, it was said, given reason to believe by ex-Attorney-General Herbert J. Parker, counsel for Proctor, that the missing man would be on hand next week.

Upon this assurance the acting District Attorney agreed to the additional week's delay.

Butler's DOUBLE STAMPS ALL DAY WEDNESDAY

WIFE'S PLEA WINS HUSBAND

PROVIDENCE, R. I., May 21.—Piteously begging the husband whom she had deserted two years ago for forgiveness, Mrs. Alice Langley created a scene in the police court here.

In telling her story she said she had lived a life of slavery during the time she had been away from Mr. Langley and that she had done wrong without realizing it.

The husband, asserting that he still loved her, folded her in his arms. According to the husband, his wife left New Bedford about two years ago. Her disappearance was a mystery which he could not solve, for they apparently had a happy home.

She asserts that since that time she had been under the control of a Pawtucket man, who threatened to kill her if she ever left him.

LOOK FOR LOST BOY IN WOODS

WILBRAHAM, May 21.—Searching parties are uniting through the woods and on Wilbraham mountain to-day for some trace of Walter Carroll of Keweca seventeen-year-old student of Wilbraham Academy, who mysteriously disappeared Sunday afternoon. The boy was last seen in the vicinity of the forest reservoir, and unless he is discovered within a few days the reservoir will be dragged. The Springfield police have been called, and to-morrow young Carroll's description will be sent to the police authorities in all neighboring towns and cities.

MAYOR'S PLEA FOR BOY VAIN

WORCESTER, May 21.—Despite the pleadings of a mother and a long letter asking for clemency from the Mayor of Providence, Peter H. Cannon, a Providence boy, was sentenced to the State Reformatory by Chief Justice Aiken today, being indicted for burglarizing two cafes in his city. Cannon, alias Frank A. King, the detectives say, has a criminal record.

Mayor McCarthy of Providence sent a long letter in which he asked that clemency be shown the young man because he has respectable parents in Providence, came of a good family, and has a brother, John F. Cannon, in Providence, who would give the boy employment.

District Attorney Tuft explained to the court that Mayor McCarthy must have been sadly deceived in the boy's reputation, for, according to detectives, the boy has a criminal record.

J. W. ALEXANDER NOW IN CHINA

SHANGHAI, China, May 21.—Looking like a "new man," James W. Alexander, former president of the Equitable Assurance Society, is now in China on the world tour he undertook on account of the breakdown of his health, due to the life insurance scandal in New York. Mr. Alexander was a passenger on the liner Mongolia, from Hong Kong, which arrived here yesterday. He is accompanying John Nolan and family of Chicago, and R. W. Davis. Before starting for home the party will go to Pekin and put a sheet tidi to Japan.

Mr. Alexander declared he has fully recovered his health and had enjoyed his tour immensely.

'COMING THRO' RYE' ATTACHED

PROVIDENCE, R. I., May 21.—"Comin' Thro' the Rye," although it completed its engagement at the Providence Opera House Saturday night, is still here, or at best its scenery, which is tied up by four writs of attachment.

The Metropolitan Printing Company of New York claims $4,000; there is another for $3,000; George V. Hobart, the author, has one for $2,500, while Colonel Felix E. Wedderlader is a creditor to the extent of $300.

WIFE IN FIGHT OVER HER CHILD

TAUNTON, May 21.—Frank H. Sherman and his sister, Miss Florence Sherman, were discharged by Judge Fox in the District Court here in the suit of the former's wife, Mrs. Maud F. Sherman of Providence, R. I.

The Shermans separated some time ago. The courts awarded a three-year-old child to its mother. Recently the father saw the little one in Providence and took it to his home at Rehoboth. The mother went after it and alleges she was assaulted by her husband and his sister.

JAIL AWAITS "PLOTTERS" AGAINST MRS. GOULD

New York Millionaire's Wife Makes Sensational Charges as She Sues Him for Divorce.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, May 21.—Jail awaits those whom Mrs. Howard Gould charges with conspiring to blacken her character in her suit for divorce from the multi-millionaire scion of Jay Gould.

Conference to-day between the Police Commissioner and the District Attorney corroborated the reports that criminal prosecutions were to follow the revelations which came after "Big Bill" Hawley, ex-convict and professional perjurer, sued Howard Gould and his lawyer, Delancey Nicoll, for professional services in "getting evidence against Mrs. Gould."

Subpoenas have been issued for witnesses to appear before the Grand Jury, and it is believed that a number of police officials who used their city positions in Gould's efforts to blacken his wife's character, one or more lawyers and several outsiders may be the subject of indictments by the Grand Jury.

Mrs. Gould has filed her suit for separation, asking big alimony, declaring his income is $1,000,000 a year.

Mrs. Gould is determined that Gould shall not marry the young actress to whom he has been attentive. The wife of the millionaire heard that as soon as she should obtain a divorce he would wed the actress. To prevent this she instructed her lawyer to sue for a separation. The papers, it is said, were served on last Friday.

"Ridiculous," Says Actress.

The young woman lives in a hotel in West Forty-seventh street. When informed of the report that she would become Gould's wife, she said:

"It is ridiculous. If you print the report I will be placed in an embarrassing position. I do not know how the story originated, but it is entirely without foundation."

When informed that the first announcement had been made by her brother, she said:

"There must be some mistake about that. I cannot believe my brother said it. Mr. Gould and I are only casual acquaintances. I have met him only three or four times, and I do not know when I will see him again."

Mrs. Gould's complaint covers every one of the grounds on which it is possible to contain a legal separation. Under the first charge that he is not a proper person to live with, it is said that some exceedingly distressing facts will be presented in the bill of particulars or at the time of the trial.

Charges Gould Abandoned Her.

The second charge is that he abandoned her. Since last July Mrs. Gould has been living at the St. Regis Hotel. Which has been recognized for some time as the city home of the female, and her husband has not once visited her.

Non-support is the third allegation. In September of last year Gould is alleged to have discontinued providing Mrs. Gould with funds. During the past few weeks, since the exposure of the acts of "Big Bill" Hawley, however, Gould is said to have begun once more to pay her expenses at the St. Regis.

Under the fourth charge, that of cruel and inhuman treatment, many specifications are made, one of which is that Gould, at the time of their separation, sent notices to all of the tradespeople with whom he knew she did business, directing them not to give her any credit if they had any idea of collecting their accounts from him. This was at a time when, it is said, he was trying to force her to accept his terms in the financial feature of their separation and she charges that in this way he endeavored to compel her to submit to his wishes.

Another of the specifications is that he has humiliated her constantly by surrounding her with detectives, causing her mail to be opened and subjecting her to many similar annoyances.

She declares that she has frequently been shamed and humiliated by the open manner in which he has associated with other women while she was being neglected.

WOULD RAISE $500,000 ON LAND VALUES

C. B. Pillebrown, representing the Massachusetts Single Tax League, to-day recommends that the proposed $500,000 for improvement of Boston streets be raised by levying the required amount upon the land value of Boston.

His suggestion comes in an open letter to Mayor John F. Fitzgerald, as follows:

"I note the comment taken by the Good Government Association upon your query as to how Boston can most wisely raise a new $500,000 for the street department, whether by loan or by an increased levy!

"Will you allow me to ask what easier, fairer or wiser way could there be than to levy the required amount close than one dollar per thousand upon the present $500,000,000 land value of Boston which now bears practically no tax burden at all?

QUEEN YIELDS SPANISH HEIR TO OFFICIAL NURSE

MADRID, May 21.—Clad in the traditional uniform which has been associated with her official position since the days of Spanish history, the nurse of Prince Alfonso to-day assumed her duties of caring for the future monarch. It was with the greatest reluctance that Queen Victoria finally surrendered this task to the other, and not until it had been represented to her that she would endanger the life of her son, as well as her own, by trying to nurse the infant did she yield to the physicians' remonstrances. She has established a new record although for Spanish queens by nursing her child for ten days.

A story of King Alfonso's schooling in English books prepared for the child's amusement when he is older is revived with interest. The books contained old English nursery rhymes and pictures in English artists. At the King's suggestion orders were given for Spanish rhymes and blank pages in the books with pictures of Spanish soldiers.

OIL MAGNATE'S AUTO MANGLES CHICAGOAN

CHICAGO, May 21.—An automobile owned and operated by P. C. Crenshaw, No. 202 Ontario street, manager for the Standard Oil Company, knocked down Nils Johnson, fifty years old, at Corlon street, early last evening at Michigan and Rush streets Johnson's knee cap and two ribs were broken. He was taken to St. Luke's Hospital at Mrs. Crenshaw's request, and the hospital attendants were told to spare no expense in caring for him.

GRANT ADVANCE.

AMESBURY, May 21.—Notices have been posted in all departments of the Hamilton Woolen Company's mills to-day announcing an advance in wages on May 27. The amount of the increase will be about 10 per cent.

TELEGRAPHERS SNUB HEAD OF WESTERN UNION

Will Appeal to Directors for Redress of Grievances, Instead of Clowry.

Though it had been expected, according to New York dispatches, that the executive committee of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union would begin daily conferences in Manhattan to-day to consider the strike developments against the Western Union Company, M. J. Reilly, the Boston member of the committee, said to an AMERICAN reporter to-day that he had not yet been called to New York.

"I think it must be the local executive committee which is in session there," he said. "I am not going to New York to-day. I doubt if there will be any trouble in this city. I think the grievances are confined principally to New York."

President Small, of the union, says that it is a matter of record that the Western Union officials in New York, Boston and other cities tried to withhold the recent 10 per cent. increase from operators working the automatic system, on the ground that they are not Morse operators, and that the raise in pay was not granted until it had been left definitely settled by a body.

The executive committee is also prepared to furnish affidavits to the effect that operators' wages in this city were reduced to the rating prior to March 1 by over large city. The members realize that they can prove that employes are being continually discharged because they belong to the union, the charge having been made against them that they were "agitators."

In addition to Reilly, the union board consists of R. J. Neary, chairman, Memphis, Tenn.; C. E. Hill, Toronto; R. J. Kosenkamp, Pittsburg; J. M. Smith, Vancouver, Tenn.

Directors of the Western Union will be asked to consider requests for fair wages, regular hours and fair treatment without having the requests laid first before President Clowry.

Members of the union believe that the attitude assumed toward them by Clowry would force a strike should he be asked to pass upon the questions at issue, and they have gone over his head in the hope of avoiding any such detriment to general business.

DEMOCRATS IN CITY CAUCUSES BACK GODDARD

Indorse Senators and Representatives in Providence Ward Meetings.

PROVIDENCE, May 21.—With the adoption of resolutions indorsing the support given to Colonel Robert H. I. Goddard for the United States Senate by the Democratic General Assembly delegation from this city, conferences for the election of delegates to Wednesday's senatorial convention were held last night in the various ward rooms, in response to the call issued by the Democratic City Committee.

No exciting or untoward incidents occurred in any of the wards. In the First Ward and in some other wards the check lists were used, but in most of them, including the Tenth, the check lists were not removed from their cartons.

The resolution, which was adopted by a unanimous vote in the different wards, is as follows:

"The electors of this ward desire to express their sincere commendation of the Senator and Representatives in the General Assembly from the city of Providence for their support of the candidacy of Robert H. I. Goddard for the United States Senate, also for their support of measures introduced for the improvement of conditions in the government of this State. We earnestly recommend to the voters of this ward the renomination and re-election of said Senator and Representatives."

SOLON WALKS FROM GOTHAM TO OHIO

COLUMBUS, O., May 21.—E. S. Martin of New Straitsville, member of the House from Perry County, reached his home in that city yesterday after a three weeks' tramp from New York. Martin, who is a wealthy coal operator, went to New York several months ago to benefit his health. The trip there was made in a palace car, but he "footed it" every inch of the way back in the belief the walk would prove beneficial.

Crime Deliberately Planned by Meikle Boy, Says Prosecutor

STATE OUTLINES CASE AGAINST YOUTH ACCUSED OF FATHER'S DEATH.

upper bureau drawer of the Meikle house.

Mrs. McCarthy refused to give it to him. He finally snatched the key, it is said, and ran to his home. The State contends that he then pulled down the blinds in the kitchen and as soon as his father arrived shot him dead.

The paper box in which the pistol was kept, the card that showed the boy had been absent sixteen days in two months and the letter which came on the day of the tragedy were all found hidden in the house by the police.

The first witness called was William N. Venard of the city engineers' office in Lynn, who testified as to the lay of the house and land where the tragedy took place. He was followed by Medical Examiner Pinkham, who performed the autopsy on the body of the dead man.

On cross-examination he was asked if he thought it was a case of murder or suicide. This precipitated a long discussion between counsel. Finally the medical examiner was allowed to answer. He said:

"COULD BE SUICIDE."

"I reply to this, as I did in the lower court. The wound could have been self-inflicted if the man had not been able to pull the trigger and had held his face in a certain position."

Medical Examiner Pinkham produced a piece of skin that had been cut from the face of the dead man. It was found very near where the bullet entered the face. The medical examiner pointed out that it was stout on the face, and that the eyebrow was scorched. He outlined that the pistol had been held very close to the face, and indicated suicide.

Edgar was brought into court to-day with his hands handcuffed together in front of him, just as he was yesterday. He was in as cheerful a condition as could be expected under the circumstances.

"I do not fear the death chair," he declared.

His guardian, Joseph F. Trimble, said to-day:

"Edgar realizes his peril. He knows full well that the chosen twelve in the jury box may decide that he killed his father and that the State may demand his life for that of his dead parent, but in the confident withal that justice will be meted out to him.

"Edgar is now sixteen, though he was but fourteen when his father was found dead in the kitchen of his home in Lynn. And as the trial progresses, the boy understands the full import of everything that goes on."

BELIEVES IN HIS INNOCENCE.

"In his conversation with friends he does not attempt to conceal the fact that it may be impossible to convince the jury that he did not slay his father. He is calm, alert to his danger, but hopeful for the outcome. His innocence, we, his dearest friends, believe in. We can only wait and see how his story and the evidence our witnesses will present will be taken. The boy is bearing up bravely, with a fortitude that few men on trial for their lives can bear witness to. His very strength and confidence is enough to make us have faith in him."

"PLANNED CRIME," SAYS PROSECUTOR

In his presentation of the State's case Assistant District Attorney Henry C. Attwill said:

"For the first time in this case the evidence of the Commonwealth is being made public. The District Attorney is not prosecuting this case from malice, but because the Grand Jury has returned an indictment against the accused.

"Yet it is for the government to prove what it charges beyond a reasonable doubt —a doubt beyond reason."

The assistant district attorney then outlined murder in the first degree, in the second degree and manslaughter and stated that anyone could be found by the jury, under the charge now being tried, of which prisoner if he should be found guilty. Continuing, he said:

"Deliberate Crime."

"The Commonwealth contends that this defendant did deliberately and with malice aforethought kill his father on November 7, 1905.

"At that time the upper tenement of the house, which you visited yesterday, gentlemen of the jury, was vacant. In the lower tenement lived the Meikles, father and son. They lived together, ate together and slept together. The father was the breadwinner of the boy.

"On the morning of November 6, as we will show you, the father, after eating his breakfast, at 6:30 o'clock, went over the course you did yesterday to the blacksmith shop of the General Electric Company. We will show you that he was in usual spirits, that he went about his work in the usual way. On that day he was making bolts and when he left at noon he made preparations for work to be done in the afternoon; and that he even suggested that a certain bolt should be right, and that the work could be done more easily.

"Instantly Shot at Door."

"We will show you that after he washed up he went home with George Hamilton. Hamilton left first and Meikle ran after him, putting on his coat as he ran. We will show that they walked together over the course you went yesterday to the junction of Centre street and Western avenue; that they passed there to Meikle's destination, a short way he was telling to Hamilton.

"We will show you that as they left each other Hamilton asked Avery, 'you going to vote to-day?' To which Meikle replied: 'I guess not; to-day's Thursday.'

"Meikle then proceeded up Western avenue to Congress street. We will produce a witness be the name of Carroll, who preceded Meikle, being about a half hour in advance, as Meikle turned into his yard. Carroll continued and turned into the next house, the one we showed you yesterday, and as he arrived he heard a report shot, which will show that Meikle was shot and fell forward almost instantly after he arrived at his door.

"Signed Father's Name."

"We will show that within two or three weeks of the shooting cards had been sent to the father from the boy's teacher showing that he had been absent from school sixteen times during September and October. In November he had been absent every school day up to the time of the tragedy.

"While Edgar's absence from school was being reported by the teacher, the boy had been writing letters of excuse to her to which he had been signing his father's name. These letters explained the boy's absences. We will show that on Thursday and Friday before the shooting the boy was absent from school on account of illness.

"We will place Edgar in the room on the forenoon of the day of the shooting. He was ordered to join the class in study. The boy opposite him passed to the teacher. The letter asked if the boy had left school. It said that if he had left for good, the teacher wrote, she should have been glad.

"Got Key to Pistol Drawer."

"We will show that, within a few minutes after this, Edgar went to the Meikle family house and asked Mrs. McCarthy to let him have the key to the upper bureau drawer in his father's house. The boy feared some one might get the pistol that was locked in this drawer and a plaything in small hands.

"Mrs. McCarthy refused to give him the key. He asked again for it, but she refused again. Then the boy ran over to where he knew help was at hand and ran back hastily.

"The boy went into the bedroom, unlocked the bureau drawer and took out the pistol. The pistol and cartridge box used before. Edgar knew where it was kept and that there were cartridges in the drawer.

"Can't Shoot. He's Dead."

"We will show that just after the shot was fired the boy ran to the McCarthy house and cried out to Mr. McCarthy:

"'Jerry, Jerry, my father has shot himself.'

"Mr. McCarthy offered to go to the Meikle house at once but Mrs. McCarthy cried:

"'Don't go—don't go—he will shoot you.'

"No," replied the boy, 'he can't he is dead.'

"We will show you that Mrs. McCarthy went with the boy to the Meikle house and found the dead body of the man on the floor of the kitchen. The curtains of the kitchen were all pulled down.

"Boy Opened Letter."

"We will show you that the body of Mr. Meikle lay in the kitchen with the feet about 3½ feet from the kitchen door, the head toward the centre of the kitchen. On a refrigerator near the door was the pistol with the barrel pointed in toward the centre of the kitchen.

"It will appear in evidence that a few days after the funeral State Officer Proctor made a search of the Meikle home in company with Mr. McCarthy and a brother of the deceased. State Officer Proctor then found a wooden box [illegible] covered by another box. In this lower box he found a blue pasteboard box which had contained the pistol.

"In that wooden box State Officer Proctor also found the school attendance card that indicated the sixteen absences of the prisoner.

"Father Warned Lad."

"The State officer also found the letter which the postman had delivered at the Meikle home on the morning of the shooting, which the State contends, was delivered by the boy.

"On the afternoon of the shooting there was found hanging on the kitchen door the following writing, in the handwriting of Mr. Meikle, addressed to his son:

"'You go to school and get that card from the teacher. You stay in the house or you will have you arrested.'

"Now on Saturday before the shooting Mr. Meikle was sick in bed. The prisoner was not at home. The prisoner stayed away from home that night.

"We will show that he met a boy named Garrity and asked him to go to the house, saying that he, the prisoner, feared that his father had shot himself.

"Found Gas Turned On."

"On Sunday a man named Goudreau smelled gas near the Meikle home. He got Mr. McCarthy, and they went into the house. They found the gas turned on full blast.

"The government contends that on Tuesday, November 7, Mr. Meikle went to his home with no thought of death. The government contends that while he was at his work that morning there was nothing unusual in his demeanor, nothing that would indicate that he intended to do harm to himself.

"The government contends that Mr. Meikle, when he got home, never saw that attendance card, although he had seen other cards which had shown him that his son had been remiss in attendance at school.

"In the past Mr. Meikle had taken his son to task for having been irregular in his attendance at school and for having stayed out at his future late.

Government's Charges.

"The government contends that the prisoner became angered by the warning that his father had left upon the slate, and that he then went to his father's room and got the key to the bureau drawer, that he took a pistol and box of shells from that drawer, that he pulled down the window shades in the kitchen, and that as soon as his father opened the door the prisoner shot him dead.

"The government contends that the prisoner contemplated his act as soon as he read the letter left by the postman. We shall show that this letter, the attendance card and the pistol and box of shells were thrown hurriedly, after the shooting, into the wooden box and were there forgotten by this prisoner.

"We shall show you that the boy first stated that his father came in from work at noon, that he asked him if he had been to school and upon his reply that he had not they had some conversation, that the boy subsequently said that his father came into the sitting room and came on with the revolver and shot himself. We shall show you that the boy subsequently said that his father came in and without any words pulled the revolver from his front pants pocket and shot himself.

"We shall show you that from the character of the wound the shot was held not more than four or five inches away from the cheek, that it was not at such an angle as to make it impossible and impossible to have pulled the trigger with the forefinger of the second finger as a pistol is usually discharged.

Lawyer Sisk Objects.

"It will appear that the local police examined the house shortly after the tragedy and gave up any further investigation. The State police made an investigation and if there is any manifestation of feeling—"

Here Attorney James H. Sisk, senior counsel for the prisoner, objected and the objection was sustained by Judge Stevens.

Mr. Attwill proceeded, telling upon the jury to perform their duty conferred upon them as jurors, the Commonwealth and to render from the evidence as put forth by the witnesses in the case a just verdict.

He then adjourned the case at 10:00 o'clock.

After a short consultation between the counsel for the defense all witnesses were excluded from the courtroom.

MEIKLE BOY, ALONE, FACING TORTURE

By Eleanor Ames.

TO his dying day Edgar Weston Meikle will never forget the torture of yesterday, when in the Salem court he began the fight for his life, against the State of Massachusetts, which holds him suspected of slaying his own father.

The awful significance of the words, "The murder of his father;" the shame of being publicly branded a parricide; the humiliation of being taken manacled through the streets; the selection of the twelve men whose judgment will finally fix his future fate, men whose fitness to serve in such capacity depended largely upon their willingness to find a verdict according to the evidence, notwithstanding the fact that the death penalty may be meted out to the guilty; all this must have burned into his brain and heart and soul, leaving a scar that nothing can heal nor even time remove.

Day of Supreme Agony.

Sympathetic souls have justly been shocked that a fifteen-year-old boy should spend six months in the confines and infamies of a prison. But what is the secluded suffering of six months in jail compared to the public agony of one day like yesterday?

Edgar Meikle has only begun his trial, but whatever the remaining days may have in store for him, even the torturing wait at the end, while the jury weighs the evidence, I do not believe he can ever suffer again as he must have suffered yesterday.

For in all great sorrows it is the first blow that cuts deepest.

After the first piercing pain, a merciful numbness makes the rest endurable.

Yet, whatever he may have felt, he showed nothing. From the time he was led into court and fastened to the prisoner's cage until court adjourned and he was taken back to the cell which alone last October has been his only home, he displayed a Spartan-like calm.

Wears Look of Innocence.

Edgar Meikle does not look to me like a criminal. He does not even look like a bad boy. He looks quite like any other boy of fifteen, only his face is sadder and paler than one likes to see on such a boy.

He is tall and slender and well built, and he has the same slight suggestion of awkwardness that rightfully belongs to the boy of that age.

His head is not large, and a bit full at the crown; his hair thick and light brown; his eyes dark and eyebrows well marked.

Girl Cheers Boy Prisoner.

For a time Mrs. Goudreau and Miss Gaudreau, who have been his devoted friends, were in the room, and throughout the entire session Rev. Mr. Bedinger of Salem, who has visited him regularly, sat near him.

The announcement that the jury would be conducted to the scene of the crime to the boy from the immediate strain of Meikle's death in Lynn brought a respite to consideration, but what must have been the mental tumult he endured, as in his mind he saw the twelve men going over the little home on Congress street, where he and his father lived together, where his father died; looking, discussing, measuring, experimenting, making talk of distances, possibilities and theories?

What must have passed through the boy's mind as he lay in his narrow prison bed last night?

Each day brings new tortures, fresh humiliations.

To-day the State will tell why it believes Edgar Weston Meikle shot and killed his father and how it is going to try to prove that its belief is just.

And only Edgar Meikle knows how well aimed will be the darts of suspicion, for he alone knows the truth. He alone knows how his father met his death.

In the supreme moment of his life, there is neither mother, nor sister, nor near relative to give him the solace of belief and encouragement, or to weep over him and tell him to be brave, all will come right.

Just as he saw his father die alone, so alone must he stand trial, because of that death.

WAR TO FINISH ON GAS TRUST

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, May 21.—The fight for an 80-cent gas law will go on, and if necessary we shall carry it to the Supreme Court of the United States."

This was the declaration made to-day by Attorney General Jackson in discussing the report of Governor Hughes, who opined every contention of the gas trust in its fight against the 80-cent gas law.

It was the work of William R. Hearst and his newspapers which caused the Hughes investigation of the illegal trust and which resulted in the enactment of the 80-cent law in 1906.

HUMMEL, CONVICT NO. 925, BEGINS LIFE IN PRISON

Lawyer-Prisoner, in Striped Attire, Starts on Dreary Routine of Life in Blackwell's Island Gloomy Jail.

Number, 925; name, Abraham Hummell; age, 56; born, Boston, Mass.; nationality, Hebrew; occupation, lawyer; educated, yes; name of nearest friend, Bertha Hummel (sister).

NEW YORK, May 21.—When the great bell in the penitentiary on Blackwell's Island clangs its warping notes at 6 o'clock and the guards swing open the doors of the cells to permit the striped suit convicts to get into the breakfast line, No. 925 arose from cell 23, wearily dragging his brogan-covered feet, his face drawn and white, his eyes dark with the lack of sleep.

Starts in Prison March.

At the command of the guards, No. 925 steps behind another convict, places a white, delicate manicured hand tremblingly on the shoulder in front of him, and tries his best to make the heavy shoes in rhythm with the march music. A guard calls to him, sharply, "Watch out there, 925!" and the march to the dining room begins.

Abraham Hummel, the diminutive divorce lawyer, scored as a menace to the community for twenty years, begins to serve his sentence of one year in prison to-day.

The cunning eyes that had more than once confused a witness, and the fingers upon the dishonest breakfasts a high-priced lawyer, are now toying with a tin plate containing twelve ounces of hash, ten ounces of bread and a quart of coffee inside it. He eats but sparingly.

Watched by Guards.

He finds his movements watched on every side by beefing guards. He does not speak, by vigilant guards who would pounce on him if he opened his mouth to protest.

Half an hour later, with the same grim silence prevailing, Hummel is escorted to the supply room, where his small hands are smirched with the dirt of potato peeling.

If he behaves in ten months he will have paid the penalty for his crime of conspiracy in the Dodge-Morse divorce scandal. He was sentenced for a year, but he may win commutation of sixty days.

The scenes attending the incarceration of "Little Abe" Hummel, whom District Attorney Jerome described as "a menace to this community and to the law for twenty years," were unlike those of any other prisoner that has been marched to Blackwell's Island. Watchers took up their vigil at his home at 5 o'clock yesterday morning. The curtains were drawn at the windows of the four-story and basement brownstone structure at No. 52 East Seventy-third street. Three hours passed and still no signs of life within.

Nathaniel Cohen, a former law partner, tried to throw the crowd off the track and they laughed at him. "Abey" Kaffenburgh, a neighbor, did stunts with an auto and failed to fool the watchers.

A little man, with face ashen in its pallor, leaped out of the dark hallway and took the two steps leading to the street level at a bound. A fire-engine was waiting with the auto. The effort meet with success, but his thin legs betrayed his agency. Every ounce of muscular energy was put into that dash from basement to auto. His body was pitched forward at the hips and his face was almost upon the pavement. One hand held his derby hat, the other was extended as if clutching at the air.

The dwarfish figure of Abe Hummel was received laughingly. The absence of a mustache, home-shorn to cheat the prison barber, served to exhibit the prominent nose and thin nether lip. The frantic impulse of his flight gave an impish aspect to his figure. He reached the auto door, and his face was full more than once before it struck him. The fingers slipped from Hummel's grip, caught him by the collar, and he was dragged inside like a vibrating manikin.

A glimpse of him was had before the door closed. It revealed him crouching on the floor, his head pressed against the seat and in complete collapse.

Convicts Watch for Him.

Deputy Warden Murtha of the penitentiary was on hand early at Blackwell's Island to look after Hummel's commitment. Through underground channels, known only to convicts, the "tip" was spread that Hummel would shortly be at one with them. They lagged at their work, and those engaged in heaving coal at the dock stopped their work on the arrival of each boat. The guards ordered them to "get busy," but their furtive watch could not be controlled.

STATE AND CITY HONORS FOR JAP WARRIOR HERO

Governor Guild and Mayor Fitzgerald to Entertain General Kuroki.

REACHES HERE TOMORROW

Arrangements were completed to-day for the entertainment of General Kuroki, who will arrive in Boston at 6 o'clock to-morrow evening.

A state dinner, at which Governor Guild will be the host, a military reception at the Algonquin Club, a visit to Harvard and trips to see the Bunker Hill monument and the battlefields of Lexington and Concord are upon the programme.

General Kuroki upon his arrival at the railroad station will be met by members of the Governor's staff and a representative of Mayor Fitzgerald. The visitors will be driven to the Touraine, where they will live during their stay in Boston.

Thursday morning General Kuroki will call at the State House to pay his respects to Governor Guild. At 7 o'clock Thursday evening he will be the guest of a state dinner to be given by Governor Guild at the Algonquin Club. Following the dinner there will be a military reception, at which officers of the United States Army, Navy and Marine Corps, as well as officers of the State Militia will be present.

Thursday afternoon will be spent in Cambridge, where General Henry Lee Higginson and the members of the Japanese Club will act as his guides.

VOTE PEACE IN MILFORD.

MILFORD, May 21.—The stone cutters and tool sharpeners, who have been on a strike since April 1, voted last night to accept the agreement reached between representatives of their organization and the manufacturers for a minimum rate of 42 cents an hour with a half holiday on Saturdays.

Sulphide Vein

From the 3,000 year old Rio Tinto Mines of Spain, down to that infant prodigy our neighbor, Calumet and Arizona, sulphides have characterized the prominent copper mines, paying permanent dividends, measured in extent by the amount of output and market price of metal.

200 Tons Daily Assures Yearly $1,200,000 Net

75% of the World's Copper comes from Sulphide ore. 90% of the abandoned copper mines are abandoned for the lack of it. Other ores, though worth millions, give value to the mines containing them only to the extent of ore actually in sight. Authorities say the Sulphide Strike is, almost invariably, the crown of a deposit, assured for considerable depth—especially in the proven district of Bonanza Belt.

in various walks of life, whose desire it is to get the most good out of their existence, will be found to be habitual drinkers of Moxie.

Moxie is not only refreshing and thirst-quenching, but a nerve sustainer. While alcoholic stimulants may give a man a temporary impetus, he suffers from their use in the end. Moxie, on the other hand, is beneficial to the nervous system. This is the reason that men who drink Moxie are able to do more work and better work. They are always in condition for all emergencies.

Moxie drinkers get better, sleep better and feel better for its use.

Order a case sent to your home to-day so that you may have a bottle during the day while at the office. Drink Moxie on the street. This is good advice for every day in the year, but particularly valuable during the depressing days of spring and summer's trying heat.

POWERFUL "L" ROAD FIGHTS LONE WOMAN

Corporation Throws Influence Against License for Dr. Riley Hospital.

MAKES CITY HALL GOSSIP

Rumors were rife at City Hall today of attempts by the Boston Elevated Railway Company to influence the action of the aldermanic Committee on Health on the petition of Dr. Elizabeth A. Riley orf a renewal of her license to conduct a maternity hospital at No. 310 Bay State road, Back Bay.

Prominent officials and stockholders of the Elevated road have been the principal remonstrants to the location of the hospital. While the exercise of the influence of the Elevated is not an unusual occurrence at City Hall, this is probably the first case where it has been exercised in a case that did not mean dollars and cents to the road, but simply the alleged comfort and peace of mind of its officials.

Committee Reports To-morrow.

The committee which will pass upon the petition to-morrow morning and make its report at the afternoon session of the board is composed of Aldermen Woods, Draper, Baldwin, Wheeton and Clark. A member of the committee is authority for the statement that the Boston Elevated Railway Company is using all its influence to defeat Dr. Riley. She has conducted a hospital at No. 310 Bay State road for the past two years, having bought the property for this purpose. Dr. Riley, who is professor of abdominal surgery and gynecology at the Tufts Medical School, and enjoys a national reputation in medicine and surgery, does not accept ordinary cases at her hospital, and in the two years she has conducted it at No. 310 Bay State road has received by fifteen lying-in cases.

"L" Counsel Active.

The remonstrants to her petition, who number forty-four, were represented at the several hearings given by the committee by Everett W. Burdett, counsel for the Boston Elevated and the Edison Electric Illuminating Company. Although Lawyer Burdett is himself one of the remonstrants, the others were assessed $25 each for his services as attorney. William A. Gaston, the real head of the L road; his partners, F. E. Snow and Richard M. Saltonstall, both attorneys for the road, and James L. Prendergast, first vice-president of the L, are among the principal remonstrants. Former Attorney-General Albert E. Pillsbury, special Legislative counsel for the Elevated, is another.

Thomas A. Mullen, attorney for the petitioner, brought out the fact at the hearings before the committee that two of the remonstrants, W. W. Darling and Sidney Shuman, bought their houses at No. 306 and No. 308 Bay State road, respectively with the understanding that they adduced a hospital and for that reason paid less for their property than they would have done otherwise.

Makes City Hospital.

Lawyer Mullen showed that while Mrs. Riley paid $30,000 for her property at No. 310, Mr. Shuman paid but $25,000 for his house at No. 308, and Mr. Darling but $26,000 for his at No. 306.

The methods being used by the Boston Elevated Railway against Mrs. Riley in the fight are current gossip at City Hall.

PROVIDENCE, May 21.—Dinah Pear unconscious. Miss Pearson's injuries were son, who was the fiancee of John Anson, not severe as compared with those suffered by Miss Casey. The latter's condithe pilot who lost his life in the wreck of tion was said at the hospital to-day to be the Larchmont, and whose funeral was critical. held at Miss Pearson's house here, had a narrow escape from death in a runaway in which her chum, Elizabeth Casey, received injuries from which she may die.

At the Rhode Island Hospital to-day it was said that Miss Casey was suffering from concussion of the brain.

The two young women were thrown from a light carriage at Prairie and Logan avenues last night.

The horse which Miss Casey was driving became frightened when the shackle on the shaft broke. He ran away. The carriage was overturned and both the young women were thrown to the pavement.

LEGISLATORS USE "ADS" OF SHOE MACHINE TRUST

fact, however, Chief Justice Knowlton's dissenting opinion has had its effect upon me."

Used as a "News" Article.

There is at least one other publisher in the House of Representatives. His name is Albert Vittum. Vittum's newspaper is the Beverly Evening Times. The Beverly Evening Times of Saturday ran, without any advertising designation, a "news" article, headed "Machinery Bill Was Lobby Born," with a sub-caption, "Attempt to Force It Against Capital and Labor."

Representative Albert Vittum's advertising news matter started boldly off with this declaration:

"The general opinion about the State House in regard to the so-called Shoe Machinery Bill is that it is a piece of as virulent legislation as has come before the Legislature in years. It is well known that the bill was born of the lobby and had its inception several years ago in personal interest."

Exclusive of the headlines, the Beverly Evening Times had ninety-two lines of it. "I got twenty-five cents a line," Representative Vittum said to-day, "and I wish there was more of it. It came in the regular way. O'Keefe's been putting it out since all the papers. He called me up on the phone about it, and I told him I'd be glad to take it at the usual rate for political advertising. That is, twenty-five cents a line.

"I don't know why I should have turned it down. The Shoe Machinery Company's factories are located in Beverly and the whole place wants them to remain there, and wants the company to continue prosperous. I am against the bill, and I have been from the first. That would be my position for local reasons if for none other."

The same "ad" that the Beverly Evening Times printed was printed on Saturday in scores of newspapers throughout the Commonwealth. Like the Vittum newspaper, most papers printed it as "straight" news matter as if it represented the opinions of the editor. In some cases, however, notably the Lowell Courier Citizen and the Springfield Union, the newspaper took pains to mark the "ad" with stars.

FRISCO TO RUN ITS OWN CARS

SAN FRANCISCO, May 21.—San Francisco is to make an experiment in municipal ownership of public utilities. The city will take over the Geary street railway, according to a decision reached by District Attorney Langdon after a conference with Chairman Gallagher of the Board of Supervisors.

That body will appropriate $100,000 and this sum will be added in the June budget to the $500,000 already appropriated for the assumption of the railway.

The board will employ an engineer to draw plans for the conversion of the road from a cable system to an electrical conduit system. The Geary street line lost its franchise through refusal to operate cars daily as a result of the strikes.

MILLIONAIRE RIVALS IN BIG HORSE SHOW TO-DAY

Harriman and Vanderbilt Are in Contest at Brookline To-day.

By Edward E. Cogswell.

All is in readiness for the Horse Show, which opened to-day and continues through to-morrow and Thursday at the spacious grounds of the Country Club at Clyde Park, Brookline, and the stables are filled with equine beauties in trim to combat for the prizes and ribbons waiting the judges' verdict in the numerous classes coming before them during the three days.

The stables containing the Harriman and Vanderbilt horses are the main points of attraction. Before leaving Newport Mr. Vanderbilt had his horses insured for $25,000 against accidents. Turn is certain to be big rivalry between these two exhibitors whenever their horses are shown so evenly are they matched that it is impossible to pick the winner.

A new feature at the show will be the use of two rings in the centre of polo field. This will be appreciated by the spectators, for under the old plan a single ring matters dragged at times. The hurdles, too, are so close together that the jumping can be easily followed from all parts of the spacious grounds.

Hurdles Well Arranged.

The first fence is a stone wall three feet high and the second a post and rail fence four feet high. The third is a stone wall with a rail on the top. The triple bar fences are four feet and three feet and six inches in height and the distance between them is twenty-seven feet, six inches.

Many favorites in the show ring are noticed in going through the list of exhibitors, as well as a number of new names. In the amateur classes are noted Miss Harold Vanderbilt, F. T. Roche, Allan Forbes, Harry L. Burrage, Averdale Farm, Miss Dorothy Forbes, James A. Davis, Herbert T. Drake, George H. Leonard, Francis H. Burrage and Thomas W. Pierce. The dealers are well represented by Carr Bros., George Watson and George Watson, Jr.

Madison Square Winner.

In the Harriman string are Lord Brooke, Lord Burleigh, the stallion Naia, which won the reserve ribbon in the champion class at the last Madison Square Garden show; Leader of Fashion, Electric Light, Flashlight, Laughing Water and Algonquin.

The most prominent in the Vanderbilt stables are Guy Mathias and Merry Mathias, shown for the first time in this country since imported; Cydevale Champion, the famous prize pony; Dr. Selwonk and Amazement, the celebrated pair that so frequently raised audiences to enthusiasm, and the noted team Barrington and Irving.

Miss Dorothy M. Jordan has her favorite, Lady Tenzie, in the event for lady riders. Opposed to her for the prizes are Miss Dorothy Forbes, Miss Edith Austin, Mrs. Arnold Scott, Mrs. H. A. Tucker and Mrs. Thomas G. Plant.

Compete for Hunt Prize.

In competition for the hunt prizes will be seen the Montrexi Hunt Club, for the first time in Boston or vicinity at a horse show. They will meet the Middlesex and Norfolk clubs and entries from Mr. Peirce and Robert S. Bradley, Jr. The Montrexi team is composed of three polo ponies.

EXPECT BREAK SOON IN RANKS OF MASTERS

Teamsters Look for Granting of Demands by One Big Concern.

STRIKE-BREAKERS DESERT

Because a number of the master teamsters are weakening and there are indications that they will soon come to terms by granting the demand of the strikers and gladly taking them back into their employ, there are reasons to believe that the settlement of the entire trouble is in sight. Although no firms have yet signed the agreement, the foremen of one large concern told union officials to-day that his employers was preparing to grant the demands of the men and would be pleased to get them back.

Another man, who has been a spokesman for the struck firms as a representative of the Employers' Association, would not deny that there was a strong possibility of a settlement within the next day or two by some of the firms. There have also been rumors that the struck firms are not entirely in harmony regarding the action of the refusal to deal with their former hands through the union.

The struck firms yesterday had twenty fewer teams on the streets than on any day during the past two weeks, and the force of men had dwindled to 125. Many of the teams which previously had two or three men on them yesterday had but one man, the driver.

More Strike-Breakers Desert.

There were twelve more desertions from the strike-breakers' ranks yesterday, among the number being the skilled colored driver for the Lewis Flanders Company, who has been conspicuous since the strike began.

The Central Labor Union's committee of one delegate from each organization last night assigned committees and made definite plans for the holding up of a big local defense fund to finance the strike for the teamsters.

The committee reported to the C. L. U. executive board, which met at 10 last night, that it had planned to have a benefit concert for the strikers June 2 at the Columbia Theatre.

Two strike-breakers, who were said to have been under the influence of liquor, created considerable excitement in Dover square last night after 11 last night, and were arrested by Patrolman Andrews. They will be charged with drunkenness and one also with carrying a concealed weapon.

No More Strike-Breakers Coming.

"No more strike-breakers are to come to this city from New York for the teamsters' strike," was the statement made by railroad officials last night after the 11 p. m. New York train arrived without any strike-breakers aboard. From information from railroad sources and also from the New York transcontinental union it was declared that the New York agents were not paid for any men who did not take out a team, and that as a large percentage of the men de-erted on route they were losing so much money for fares and meals that they had stopped recruiting work.

The passengers on the New York train arriving at 11 p. m. mixed coolly in riding with the groups of strike-breakers and guards who have been coming on the smoker nearly every night and for last night's train the New York agents were suggested no extra car be attached for the strike-breakers. Instead the recruiting office as to how many would be sent by the train brought out the fact that no more strike-breakers were to be sent to this city by the agents.

There was a meeting last night of those interested in organizing a co-operative banking corporation, in the Old South building, when further plans were made for the incorporation of the new company.

At a mass meeting of General Teamsters' Union, Local 150, yesterday, it was voted to put the ban of the union on all horses driven by members of the Employers' Association.

COUNSEL TODAY DECIDE DATE OF EDDY CASE

Judge Chamberlain's Illness Will Keep Him from Court Room Until Thursday.

MANY LEADERS IN COURT

CONCORD, N. H., May 21—Because of the illness of Judge Robert N. Chamberlain, of the Superior Court, who was taken sick of indigestion while on the train from Boston to Concord to open court here yesterday, the case of Mary Baker G. Eddy vs. Calvin A. Frye and other Christian Science leaders was yesterday postponed until Thursday morning, when the judge is expected to be able to sit. The illness of Judge Chamberlain is not considered serious.

At 11 o'clock, the time set for the opening of the case, although there were present in the court many leaders of the Christian Science faith, it was noticeable that the only representative of the household of Mrs. Eddy at Pleasant View was Mrs. Eddy's coachman, August Hann. Among the counsel present were General Frank S. Streeter and Allen Hollis, of Concord, representing the defendants; Attorney General Eastman, of Exeter, representing the "original" defendants; ex-Senator William E. Chandler, John W. Kelley, of Portsmouth, Nathaniel E. Martin and DeWitt C. Howe, of this city, for the plaintiffs.

Of the defendants to the suit, Ira C. Knapp, William D. Johnson, Stephen A. Chase, Joseph Armstrong, Alfred Farlow, Irving C. Tomlinson and Herman S. Hering were present.

After the adjournment was ordered, counsel for the plaintiffs filed a motion with the clerk of court that each of the affidavits made in behalf of the trustees as relate to Mrs. Eddy's mental condition or the alleged misappropriation of her property be not considered in the hearing upon the motion of the trustees to intervene as plaintiffs of the suit to secure an accounting in place of the "original defendants."

Concord is filled with dignitaries of the Christian Science Church, who have flocked here from every corner of the country.

ESCAPED DEATH AS BY MIRACLE.

Miss Annie Galvin, now in hospital, believes she was blown through wall by Newton explosion that killed Miss Helen Fairbairn and wounded three others.

BOUNTIES CUT OFF; 300 MEN OUT ON STRIKE

Special to the Boston American.

LOWELL, May 21—Three hundred highly skilled machinists quit work at the Kitson machine shops to-day because the company has recently reduced the men's bounty privileges.

Heretofore the men have been granted a bounty of 2 per cent. for turning out a total of twenty-six picker machines from the shop every month. The company increased the bounty number to fifty-two chines, which the men say is equivalent to a 5 per cent. reduction in pay.

After entering work to-day the men held a mass meeting and appointed a committee to wait on the management and to demand not only a restoration of the seven-day bounty scale, but also 10 per cent. increase in wages. The men now get from $9 to $20 a week.

The men say they have a good chance to win, as they are experts in their line, are familiar with the work and cannot easily be replaced.

JEWS BEATEN BY WILD MOBS FOR TRAGEDY

ODESSA, May 21—Following the assassination of nine police officials here serious rioting occurred and last night the Black Hundreds were running wild through the streets, murdering hapless people indiscriminately. Jews, more than a hundred of whom were seriously wounded soon after the disturbances began.

The police apparently remained passive spectators of the disorder. No arrests were made and the Black Hundreds continued their work of revenge unchecked.

The tragedy which led to the rioting was as follows: While the superintendent of police and a number of other officials were in the Central Police Bureau two men and a girl entered the building, deposited in a formal machine in the office and hurried away.

The machine exploded almost immediately afterward, killing the chief of police and the two chief detectives of this city. They were blown to pieces and seven other persons were seriously injured.

The police pursued, fired at, wounded and captured two Terrorists, but the girl who was with them escaped. The leader of the Terrorists was subsequently identified as a man named Tcherliof.

The two detectives killed were bitterly hated by the Terrorists, one of them for participating in ending the outbreak of 1905 here, and the other, who was nicknamed "The Hangman," because he had tortured political prisoners.

ONE KILLED, 12 INJURED IN FLYER WRECK

UTICA, N. Y., May 21—One man was killed and twelve seriously injured as the result of the wrecking of the Buffalo and Cleveland flyer, No. 29, on the New York Central near Little Falls, early to-day.

The wreck was due to an extremely odd accident. The passenger, eastbound, was to have passed a fast freight, westbound, at Fink's Basin. The freight was derailed just before meeting the passenger, and the debris from the wrecked freight, falling across the passenger train resulted in the derailment and wrecking of the latter train.

The dead man is Baggageman Finley of New York, who was crushed to death by the telescoping of his car. The injured people injured are Mr. and Mrs. Folger of Toronto, a Mr. Allsburg of New York and Engineer Tromby of the passenger. Fireman Hyde of the freight and the fireman of the freight's name unknown. The fireman of the passenger is reported missing, but it is believed that the jumped and saved himself.

20,000 LOWELL MILL WORKERS TO GET RAISE

Special to the Boston American.

LOWELL, May 21, 1907—The mill agents of this city will not refuse an increase to about 20,000 cotton operatives. While nothing definite has come in reply to the demand made by the Textile Council, it is felt that unfavorable action on the part of the owners would mean an enormous loss, for the skilled workers of the city are extremely restless and an exodus to other cities, where better wages are paid, is bound to follow a refusal.

Already there is a scarcity of help, and the Textile Council has a big waiting list, numbering until 8 o'clock at night.

A committee will be named by the Textile Council has addressed a letter to William M. Butterworth, president of the mill agents' mills, the recognized leader of the Lowell agents, demanding an increase of at least 19 per cent.

PROBE FATAL EXPLOSION AT NEWTON SHOP

Chum of Girl Killed in Fireworks Tragedy Tells Escape from Death.

Investigation is being conducted to-day at the Masten & Wells fireworks factory in Newton Upper Falls to ascertain the cause of the explosion yesterday that wrecked the fine finishing shop, instantly killed Miss Helen Fairbairn and seriously injured four girls.

In the last few months there have been several explosions at the works, but none has been attended with fatal results. Officials of the company express themselves as unable to guess any reason why there should have been an explosion, as all possible precaution had been taken.

Because of the frequency of the explosions the Newton authorities believe that a close investigation is necessary in order to prevent others from happening.

Four in Hospital.

In the Newton Hospital are Miss Annie Galvin, Miss Catherine Gormley, Perey Marden and Matthew Maloney. They were at work in the building with Miss Fairbairn filling railroad fuses when the building was blown to pieces.

Miss Galvin believes that she was blown through the side of the building. How she escaped being killed when she was so close to Miss Fairbairn is a miracle. As she neared the hospital she met Dr. Frederick Sullivan at No. 28 Hale street, Upper Falls, and this story is told to BOSTON AMERICAN reporter:

"I was engaged in the sifting of fuses directly opposite me sat my chum, Helen Fairbairn. We had just returned to work after the lunch hour.

Heard Deafening Crash.

"Suddenly I heard a deafening crash. Then I felt myself being pulled up into the air as if by the force of a cyclone. That is all that I remembered until I found myself in a cot at the hospital. I think that I must have been blown right through the wall by the force of the awful explosion. I consider that I was fortunate in escaping as I did, with just a few slight injuries. The doctors say that within a few weeks I shall be able to get back to work again. They can give any possible cause for the explosion."

CHARGED WITH DEATH BY ACID

PROVIDENCE, May 21—Thomas Janson has been held for manslaughter in causing the death of William H. Clinton on the 6th day of April in the town of Barrington by throwing vitriol upon him.

Another warrant alleges that he did feloniously attempt to kill Sarah Janson, his wife, on the 6th day of April by throwing vitriol upon her. To each charge he pleaded not guilty and was ordered committed to Bristol County Jail without bail.

SWEDISH PRINCE COMING TO HUB

The Swedish residents of Boston are already making preparations to receive Prince William of Sweden, second son of the Crown Prince of that kingdom, who will be in Boston the last week in August, or the first week in September.

Prince William is to visit America as one of the officers of the Swedish cruiser Fylgia.

The Prince will come to Boston from New York by rail.

AIRSHIP RACE FOR $10,000

By Boston American Leased Wire.

CHICAGO, May 21.—Airship races under the auspices of the Aero Club of Chicago will be held here within two weeks. During the meeting last night Horace Wild, builder of the airship Eagle, issued a challenge for a race, with a wager of $10,000 on the result, suggesting a course from the club grounds to the Logan monument and return. Charles E. Hamilton, of New York and Captain William Attery of Chicago immediately accepted.

FINE BOYS FOR CARD PLAYING

The ten Rollindale boys who were rounded up by the Hyde Park police last Sunday while indulging in a quiet game of cards, appeared before Judge Grover in Dedham District Court today. Arthur Connolly, seventeen, and John Brady, seventeen, pleaded guilty and paid fines of $5. The others entered pleas of not guilty and the cases were continued to Thursday for trial.

Ralph Bowers of Needham was charged with driving his motorcycle through Westlesier without a light. He pleaded nolo contendre and paid a fine of $3.

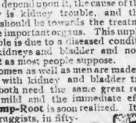
K. OF C. FAIR TO LIFT MORTGAGE

High praise was accorded the women of Dorchester last night by Mayor Fitzgerald, who officially opened the grand bazaar given by the Knights of Columbus in their new clubhouse on Pearl and Pleasant streets, Dorchester.

This bazaar will be held every evening this week, and if the box receipts on last night average with those of last night, the problem, Peter F. Dailey, declares, the $14,000 mortgage on the club building will be cleared.

The clubhouse was transformed into a bower of beauty. Red, white and blue streamers covered the building, inside and out. In the third floor were booths of the different councils prettily decorated. In the ordinary young people revelled in the sideshows, shooting galleries and candy stands.

Women as well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney and Bladder Trouble.



Kidney trouble prevs upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition, beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh, or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bedwetting, depending upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cents and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling all about Swamp-Root, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N.Y., be sure and mention this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Expert Recommends Simple Home Cures Well Worth Trying

HEALTH and beauty are so closely allied that to be healthy means to be beautiful, if it does not mean to be actually pretty. Here are some simple home remedies that will count in the fight for health and beauty:

If your complexion tells a tale of incipient gout, or disordered liver, eat apples—raw and cooked.

If your nose is red and you have other symptoms of indigestion, take no water with meals, but drink a glassful, half an hour before, and another an hour or so after.

Once a day is quite enough for the average woman who has reached the age of forty to eat meat. Most women eat far too much as they get on in years, and, as a result, lose their complexions and their figure.

Those who require a tonic cannot do better than keep orange skins and dry them. Pour boiling water over them, and drink a wineglass of the cold infusion two or three times a day. The white interior part of the skin should not be used.

Lemons may often be used as a good household medicine. They are undoubtedly very efficient as biliousness. Lemons, however, should not be taken in their pure state, as their acidity will injure the teeth and the lining of the stomach. The proper way is to take the juice of one lemon in a cup of water, without sugar. The best time to take such a dose is before breakfast or just before retiring.

Cheerfulness at meals, good, savory food and thorough mastication before swallowing, constitute the tripod upon which good digestion, nutrition and, consequently, good looks, rest. The kind of food and its preparation may be left to individual taste and instinct. These are guides which we may follow with implicit trust. Our part is to see that the food is well cooked, tastily served, thoroughly chewed, and taken in moderation.

HOW TO BE BEAUTIFUL

By the Professor

DRY AND FALLING HAIR

DEAR PROFESSOR:

My hair has a tendency to be dry, and of late comes out very freely. I am not sure how carefully I comb it. I also have many short hairs around my face, and they are as straight as a string. I hate to use the iron and will be grateful if you will tell me of some remedy for them.

TROUBLED.

HAIR comes out when it is dead, and the careful combing has nothing to do with it. When it is dead it should come out and give place to healthy hairs. The only thing is to work with the scalp and get the roots of the hair in good condition, when the falling will cease. You may wash your hair too often. Try letting it go until it is absolutely necessary from the standpoint of cleanliness to wash it. Give it an ounce each of quassia and orris root and meal shampoo, sprinkling the scalp liberally with a mixture of one or two tablespoonfuls of orris root to a cup of cornmeal, and brushing it well until all the meal is brushed out. Be sure that the scalp has been cleaned with bay rum or alcohol and dried before applying the powder. When it becomes necessary to shampoo the hair give it a good oil bath the night before, dropping on scalp the oil and massaging the scalp well. Tie up the head and leave overnight. In the morning expose for an hour or two to the strong light before dressing, and shampoo with egg shampoo, combing and brushing in the sun. This will make the short hairs grow in a little time until they will be so all the way. Avoid the curling iron if you would not keep them short.

RESTORE DARK HAIR

DEAR PROFESSOR:

My hair is dark, but lately it seems to be getting lighter, a kind of red color. Will you tell me what will restore it to its natural color?

TROUBLED.

TAKE half an ounce each of quassia and mullein flowers, steep them in water until the liquid is black and apply carefully with a brush. This is perfectly harmless, and will restore the color as you desire.

The Proper Way to Introduce People

ALWAYS present the man to the woman.

The younger woman is always presented to the older one, and a younger man to an older one.

As a general thing an unmarried woman is presented to a married woman.

In making introductions be particular to pronounce names distinctly.

It is not enough to say "My aunt" or "My sister." The name as well as the relationship must be stated.

Shaking hands is not often practised at a first meeting, unless the two have heard much of each other and wish to express special cordiality.

Behind the fact that youth always rises for age, and ordinary folk to meet the greatly distinguished, it is not necessary to observe these directions.

A woman never rises to greet a man unless she is the hostess, or wishes to pay him special compliment for his age or distinction.

A newcomer is never introduced wholesale to all the guests assembled. She is presented to one or two at a time, as opportunity offers.

PARIS STREET GOWN FOR EARLY SUMMER

THIS stunning gown, which comes to Boston direct from a leading Paris creator of fashions, is of vieux rose cloth. The skirt is festooned with silk and this same trimming is repeated on the bodice and revers. The design is one of the most fashionable of the new Summer creations.

TOMORROW'S BEST BARGAINS IN BOSTON'S BIG STORES

SHEPARD NORWELL CO. are closing out a line of infants' finest merino wrappers, offering 48 to 60-cm. values, according to size, for 25 cents. Also silk and wool wrappers, all sizes, reduced from $1 to 50 cents. These are way down from prices.

JAMES A. HOUSTON CO. offer large 12-inch cinnamon and white Teddy bears, dressed as soldiers, with toque and sweater, for 50 cents; unopened. This is a regular $1.50 value with toque and sweater dressed. It will give several dollars' worth of pleasure to any youngster who gets one. They also have a large imported sample line of dressed and undressed dolls, elegantly suited, regular $1 and $1.50 values, for 45 cents each, to-morrow, while they last.

BAILEY'S rubber store, No. 22 Boylston street, offers great values in all wool imported coats for men and out-of-town imported cloths. The values were from $15 to $22.50; to clear for $8 and $12.50. In rain coats they also have bargains in the odd sizes, also odd sizes in coats for men and women. This word to shoppers who read advertising should be sufficient.

BUTLER'S, among their bargains, have 50-cent, new style, metal hair barrettes, set with pearls, for only 19 cents. Swiss ribbed vests for 12½ cents, and children's 50-cent sleepers for 39 cents.

DODGE-SPEAR CO., among other basement bargains, offer hardwood clothespins, best quality, a two-dozen box for 5 cents; also a large bamboo broomhandle for 20 cents which sells on other days for 50 cents.

FERDINAND'S (The Blue Store) will clear out what they have left of square, solid mahogany dining tables at less than one-half price; these tables accumulated during the year for round tables; now that fashion favors the return of the square "Colonial" this is a bargain opportunity that will not be duplicated; there is a bamboo bookcase to sell for $35, and quantities of other useful pieces at proportionately low prices.

FILENE'S will offer a lot of children's coats, in red, blue and gray checks and worsteds, sizes 2 to 6 years, at $2.98; and a lot of girls' $2.50 tailored hats at $1.98.

MacDONNELL'S Tremont-Temple store offers as a special for Wednesday about 125 black taffeta petticoats, in a variety of styles, goods that have been selling at 49 cents, each Wednesday only, for 98 cents. MacDonnell's always makes a specialty of 98-cent petticoats, and the price of 98 cents is only for Wednesday. No mail orders will be received.

HOUGHTON & DUTTON CO. are taking advantage of the great demand this Spring for hand-embroidered lingerie waists and the fact that their department offers twenty different styles of package outfits, each one of which fill all materials necessary to complete each garment or piece of work, at 24 cents, 47 cents, 74 cents, 97 cents, or at 43 cents, shirt waists at 87½ cents, collars, cuffs, belt and neckties sets at 32 cents, breast sets at 39 cents, and a great assortment of other outfits at proportionately low prices. Free instruction in needlework is given to all purchasers who desire.

TIMOTHY SMITH CO. offer you their $3 lawn shirt waist dresses for $1.98. These are in the new rich ring dot voile, lace yoke corded and trimmed with double row of tuft lawn tucked collar and cuffs, edged with lace, shirt with eighteen inch flounce headed to skirt by tucking, white pearl down centre of skirt.

JORDAN MARSH CO., in the chinaware department, offer handsome tall fluted Bohemian glass bonbon dishes, in beautiful gold and green effects, $2 to $2.25 values, for 95 cents to-morrow.

WHAT IS HAPPINESS?

Dorothy Dix Gives Her Views of the Question

She Says Sages Have Sought It, but Only the Conceited Fool Ever Is Known to Find It

BY DOROTHY DIX

Copyright, 1907, by American-Journal-Examiner

THIS conundrum has been propounded to the AMERICAN by a Roxbury man:

"What is happiness? How can it be attained? Where can it be found? What are the best means of capturing it? And how can it be kept after it is once found?"

This is the riddle of the universe. Every human being from Adam down has spent his time trying to find the answer to it. No one has solved the enigma. Some make better guesses than others at it, but after all the searching and the striving the mystery is still a mystery, the unattainable is still unattained.

So far as my observation goes, the nearest solution to the problem is to be found in self-conceit.

Happiness is not a condition of affairs, but a state of mind. There is no man in the world so fortunate but what, if he searches for it, he can find the crumpled rose leaf under his forty mattresses and eiderdowns.

There is hardly a man on earth so unfortunate but what he has, if he will only look for it, something in his life that has in it the elements of happiness.

The two things, for instance, that are the very foundation stone of happiness—health and the affections of one's fellow creatures—are oftener the possession of the poor man than the millionaire. It matters not how downy the couch if one tosses sleepless upon it; it matters not how luxurious the feast if one carries to it neither appetite, nor digestion. Small is the pleasure that fifty penny ices afford in riding in automobiles, and little the joy he gets every year from a new house every other week and fond caress he suspects of being inspired by designs on his pocketbook.

The poor man who has health and strength and keen appetite and the kiss of his wife and woman he loves on his lips, and a friend at his side, has his compensations for poverty, and yet he pines for the indulgences that money brings the millionaire, just as the millionaire pines for the health and the disinterested affection that the poor man's poverty brings to him.

Neither can be happy without what the other one has, and yet it is practically impossible for any one to have both.

The Happy Egotist

BETWEEN these two stands, the one happy man, the self-complacent, self-satisfied egotist. He may be poor or rich or moderately well off. He may be clever or stupid, handsome or ugly, successful or a failure, married or single. It does not matter. He is himself, and that is enough.

If such a man makes money, even more than the material comforts that his wealth gives, does he enjoy expatiating to every one he can hold up on his wonderful sagacity and financial acumen and the marvellous thrift and energy he displayed in piling up his fortune.

If he is poor he makes a virtue of his poverty, and spends his days in telling how he would have made millions if only he had resorted to the nefarious means practised by others, and, as he sits down to his humble cottage to his dinner of herbs, he descants on his refinement to eschewing the vulgarity of palace and haunts of the delights of vegetarianism.

If such a man writes a book, or is a popular actor, he blows his own horn as loud as Gabriel's trumpet, and is perfectly blissful in passing around in an attitude of unapproachable greatness.

If he is an "also-ran" actor or author, and still believes himself a second Booth or Shakespeare, he is quite as happy explaining that the only reason that he does not occupy the spot light on the stage and head the list of six best selling books, is because there is a conspiracy against him in the magazines, and theatrical managers are banded together to keep down transcendent talent.

It does not matter in the least what sort of a woman the man with the exaggerated ego marries. The minute a woman becomes his wife, the mantle of his perfection is thrown over her, and she becomes at once a compendium of all feminine charms and virtues.

The complacent man's children never cause him a pang of anxiety or regret. There are always phenomenons possessing beauties and gifts that the whole world is unable to see or appreciate.

Thus it is that the conceited man is the only man who really gets happiness out of life. The modest millionaire is not happy for a thousand reasons. For one thing, others have played a bigger game more brilliantly than he, or for another with all his money, he may shrink from being pointed out as one of the new rich.

The humble poor man is miserable because he has a sense of failure. It is only the egotist who, with full pockets, or empty pockets, can enjoy equally well exploiting his wealth or his poverty.

Conceit Brings Happiness

NO really great writer is ever happy or contented, because he sees beyond him a glory of imagination, a delicacy of style, a power of expression that, like the mirage of the desert, recedes farther and farther from his as he toils toward it, and mocks him with the vision of the unattainable.

Yet, how often are we called upon to listen to the fatuous production of the conceited amateur, who reads to every human being who will listen, the letter that he wrote to the papers about cleaning off the snow and signed Vox Populi?

While as for actors, the most complacent one that I have ever met was a young fellow, who, after telling me how much superior he was to Mansfield and David Warfield, invited me to see him in a certain production, and said:

"I'm the third man from the left in the back row of spear carriers. I thought I'd better tell you, for fear you might miss me. There is much jealousy in the profession that when the stars find out that anybody has genius they put them out of business if they got a chance, they always put them in the back row."

The conceited man glories in love. He is never one of those who suffer from blighted affections. He believes that every woman is infatuated with him at sight, and when one has the ill-taste to refuse him he merely sets it down to her lack of good taste, and is so revolted thereby that his affection for her perishes on the spot.

Other people fail of happiness because they are tormented by longings they can never gratify; by regrets and remorse, by the sense of their own unworthiness and failures.

Not so with the complacent egotist. He is sure that he is right in every way, and when you think well of yourself it matters not what others think of you.

Many sages have sought happiness, but only conceited fools ever find it.

"THE HERITAGE OF HATE"

Copyright, 1907, by American-Journal-Examiner

THE young doctor turned suddenly round. One of the undernurses had approached him.

"If you please, Dr. Harding," she announced, "there is a lady asking to see you downstairs. It is Miss Heath."

Miss Heath? Pauline? Alfred Harding started, and a sudden wave of color flushed his handsome face that had been somewhat pale of late.

With a few words of farewell to the sick child, he rose from his seat and hurried to the ward on his way to the vestibule.

A small ramshoot was drawn up opposite the doors, and in it, holding the reins, sat Pauline Heath, looking fair and radiant as the morning, in a soft gray dress with white openwork trimming, and a broad-brimmed gray hat with a large drooping feather. A bunch of deep purple violets nestled against the white trimming of her breast; their rich color served to bring out the violet tints that darkened her great gray eyes. The gray dress, too, emphasized the fresh purity of her complexion, showing that the cream whiteness of the cloth and contour melted into the palmiest of roses. That blushiness deepened suddenly when a crimson glow, was this deadly now into a vision of her. Hardwas this deadly now into a vision of her. Harding appeared, and she put out her hand in greeting or by some word spoken to her by William, who sat near her?

Alfred Harding, who had noticed the blush, hastily attributed it to the latter cause. His own face grew a shade paler with jealousy at that innocent look of pleasure.

He advanced to the rumshoot and was greeted by Pauline with one of those sweetest of smiles that only comes from eyes and lips alike and seem to have the very sunshine in them. Alfred Harding felt that he had seen that smile before on some other face then.

But he did not now pause to ask himself where he had seen it. He observed that her lap was full of purple grapes and that an open basket behind her in charge of the groom. She held out her hand in the same gay, girlish glove.

"How do you do, Dr. Harding? I have come to see you for Mr. Higgs—if you will let me see him." She smiled again, and Alfred Harding's heart leaped to him, scarcely knowing what he was doing. "Westminster only a few minutes' drive. Now, as I haven't seen him for some time and do not know whether it is that he does not get to New York or for some other reason, and as I expect to be in the city where he has a large practice, would it be proper for me to give him a friendly call at his place of business?" CONSTANCE HEATHER.

DO not call at his place of business, but write a note several days before you expect to be in the town and tell him where you will be staying. Say that you will be glad to see him and hope that he will call. If he is anxious to see you he will be sure to take advantage of the invitation.

Sister Rachel!

Might she not? Alfred Harding's face flushed again with pleasure. With the coldest possible greeting to Gilbert Wynn he turned out of the vehicle, and proceeded to lead himself with the basket of fruit and the books. She herself carried the flowers.

Some of them were rare blossoms, sweet and heavy of scent, but their oppressive perfume could not overcome for him the fragrance of the violets that nestled at her bosom. He was conscious of her, and only of her, as he walked by her side to the ward. Only of her, as he went about all unconscious of the visit with which he was to be honored.

Gilbert Wynn preferred to remain outside. He was in nowise addicted to the study of human suffering.

Suddenly, as Dr. Harding and Pauline drew near to Higgs's bedside, a door opposite them opened, and Sister Rachel appeared on the threshold.

At sight of the two she drew back a step; it seemed to her that her heart must stop, that something in her brain must presently snap, and leave her mad, helpless, perhaps lifeless. The long ward, with its rows of white beds, reeled round her.

Her sight failed her, there was a noise as of rushing waters in her ears. And a voice rained her, startlingly clear, yet seeming to come from afar:

"Sister Rachel. Sister, this is Miss Heath."

Flood of Memory

What was it that passed through the nurse's mind in those moments? She herself could scarcely afterward have told.

Thoughts and feelings were mingled within her in terrible tumult; but the feeling was strongest, and was at once bitter and wild with anguish and keen joy—remembrance. Her child, her child! Memory whirled her back to the days when she was Mrs. Alfred Heath, and this child had come, her first-born, to crown her wedded happiness.

It was because of this child's slight indisposition that she had gone out on that accursed night when Francis Heath had met his doom, and had thereby brought about her own fearful martyrdom.

It was from this child, the elder of the two, who had remained at home, that she had to speak her name, that it had been hardest to part when, as the convicted and condemned Mrs. Heath, she had been permitted to see for the last time the little ones upon whose opening destinies her supposed guilt and its punishment had cast a shadow that even Time's effacing hand could never wipe away.

And now the little Pauline, for whose lisping prattle and pretty ways she had yearned so madly and so vainly during years and years of hunger and degradation, stood here before her, tall, and fair, and sweet, in all the pride and glory of blossoming womanhood; stood here before her and looked into her face, and held out her pretty gray-gloved hand in almost reverent greeting.

"I am very proud to meet you, Sister Rachel. I have wanted to see you for a long time. People talk of you so much and of your noble work."

An Iron Will

Again that noise as of rushing waters came into the sorely-tried woman's ears, and the long room reeled about her. To her, who had been forced hitherto to control herself with every brief glance of her loved ones, the suddenness and closeness of this meeting were overpowering. But she was a woman strong of soul, as well as of physical frame, and her long and agonizing ordeal had taught her self-control. With one supreme effort of a will that could be as iron when she chose, she suppressed every emotion which had been so near to betraying her and confronted the situation with her usual outward calmness.

ADVICE TO THE LOVELORN

By Beatrice Fairfax

WRITE A NOTE

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have known a young man for about three years who lives out of town, and during that time he came to New York but he takes me out. He told me when that any time I happen to be in his town I should let him know and he would take me to a real nice time. Now, as I haven't seen him for some time and do not know whether it is that he does not get to New York or for some other reason, and as I expect to be in the city where he has a large practice, would it be proper for me to give him a friendly call at his place of business? CONSTANT READER.

DO not call at his place of business, but write a note several days before you expect to be in his town and tell him where you will be staying. Say that you will be glad to see him and hope that he will call. If he is anxious to see you he will be sure to take advantage of the invitation.

HARD TO TELL

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have been keeping company with a young gentleman for nearly two years, and now he has loved me very much and came over to the house every evening. This year I can't tell whether he loves me or not and he never comes to the house when asked. Now, as I love him very much, how would you advise me to find out whether he still cares for me or not, and how could I get him to come over more often? MADGE.

IF he wanted to call he would. He knows he is welcome and requires no further invitation. I am afraid that he does not care for you as much as he used to and if you take my advice you will not urge him to do so. Be good to him when he calls and make yourself as agreeable as possible. That is all you can do.

"PRINCE CHAP" SWEET AND DELIGHTFUL COMEDY

To cast three different persons, of different ages, for the same role is a dangerous experiment. Only a genius at stage direction and three unusually capable players could carry through this feature to success. That Helen Pullman, aged five; Edith Speare, aged eight, and Justina Wayne, aged eighteen, could carry on the illusion through three acts, make the audience forget that they were three different persons, and make them feel all the time that it was one Claudia, growing up, who was so delightfully calling the "prince chap" dad, was one of the many delightful things about that really delightful play, "The Prince Chap," which was given its first production at the Hollis last night.

It was practically a first night for Cyril Scott, the star, for it marked the first time he has appeared in straight drama here in eight years, and he made mention of the fact in a really good curtain speech. "The Prince Chap" is one of those sweet, wholesome, delightful plays that leaves a good taste in the mouth, an dubbed a specimen fellow to talk of for years afterward. It tells a simple story of an honest man, a pure girl and the development of their love for each other. It is told naturally, logically, and is interesting in the telling. It has gripping strength, too, from the manner in which it is played, for every actor has a part, from Gilbert Claudia and Phebe Puck to the Marcus Rushton and the Prince Chap. It is capable and sincere. Mr. Scott is ideal in the latter part, and Mary Keogh's Phebe is a perfect bit of character work. There is lots of life and comedy in "The Prince Chap," and it is one of the best plays that has been brought here this season. It deserves a long run.

LEE HARRISON TELLS NEW STORIES

Lee Harrison is the real headliner at the Orpheum Theatre this week. He has a fund of interesting stories and he winds up his entertaining with a Sherlock Holmes song, which is a hit, not only for its originality, but also for the cleverness of its execution. Harrison appears in the long studio heated pipe associated with the hero detective made famous by William Gillette, and to a song tells the methods of deduction that have enabled him to become famous. He is on the only good thing on the programme, however, for nearly every other act is a member of the name of "headliner." The Fitzgibbon Musical Co., in a laugh provoking one-act farce, "A Mischievous Brother," get many results of delightful merriment from the funny military travesty in "The Battle of Ten Boogs." Belmont and Moore in "A Bit of Vaudeville" did some protean and song and dance work of an unusually pleasing description. Peter Griffin, a Boston boy, danced his way into the hearts of the audience in Marguerite and Sylvester were one of the best knockabout acts on the stage, and all the other acts are of great strength.

"THREE OF US" DESERVES SUPPORT

At the Majestic Theatre last night that stirring play of real life, "The Three of Us," entered upon the final week of its Boston stay. There will be the usual matinees on Thursday and Saturday, and "The Three of Us" has its scenes laid in the West, in a Nevada mining camp, but there is a pleasant absence of those well-known stage figures of red-shirted miners with their whiskey bottles and gun and knife play. This play is the simple story of a young girl left in charge of two younger brothers and sisters, and her endeavors to bring them up to be worthy citizens. More than the action of the play moves, "The Three of Us" is distinctly one of the most delightful plays of the season. It deserves support.

SOLONS WITNESS 'TIME, PLACE, GIRL'

"The Time, the Place and the Girl" entered the stretch for its final fortnight with no evidence that marked the Tremont. Way down in front was a big delegation of senators and representatives from Beacon Hill on hand for the inspection of the brisk, bright musical comedy, and the solons entered with zest into the rollicking spirit of the play. Arthur Dugon's playful little rans at "pork and pull graft" were heartily appreciated, and recalls, led by the Beacon Hill delegation, were so numerous that the final curtain was delayed until long after schedule time.

STOCK PLAYERS AT THE LYCEUM

Summer stock season at the Lyceum opened yesterday. The company is one of artists of more than ordinary ability. Robinson and Corey sing illustrated songs with electrical effects. The Gordon sisters furnish a comedy acrobatic and log pouching act, and "Little" Bessie Rosa dances and sings. The best number is the Nonpareil Comedy Four. Nibio and Spencer are good in clog dancing. Motion pictures complete this part of the program. "It Happened in Ykehland" is the title of the burlesque, in which the chorus singing is good. Belle Travers is excellent, also Annie Goldie.

PAT WHITE BACK AT THE COLUMBIA

It is doubtful if any other company playing burlesque could draw such big crowds as did Pat White and his Gaiety Girls at the Columbia yesterday, despite the outdoor attractions. The show is at first a burlesque show should be. Never did Pat White appear to better advantage with his funny songs, his merry frolics at the whistle, his travelling of the pieces of the soda fountain and his famous echo song. He is surrounded by a company of superior excellence and an olio that will bear favorable comparison with the season's best. Grace Addison Barrett was the big olio favorite as a quartet of young women billed as The Four Tecos came in for a long share of applause. The Clayton-Hanson wrestling bout takes place this evening, Friday night the big amateur bill will be given.

PICTURES AT THE LYRIC.

Every one who cares for moving pictures would do well to visit the Lyric this week, as a large variety of pictures new to Boston are presented. Illustrated songs are also included in the program.

CRAIG PLAYERS PUT ON "HER GREAT MATCH"

Mary Young Reveals an Unusual Talent in Maxine Elliott's Role.

Maxine Elliott's big success, "Her Great Match," from the pen of Clyde Fitch, is the production with which John Craig and his players delighted the patrons of the Globe Theatre with last evening. The scene is laid in England at the country home of a wealthy Englishman, and the first act shows the grounds of the Mediterran manor during the country fete, and also some pleasing scenes between Jo and Lord Adolph Prince. The part of Crown Prince Adolph is entrusted to Mr. Craig, and he does credit to his acting abilities. The part of "Jo" was played by Mary Young, and it was a delightful impersonation. Miles she gave Ben Johnson as Augustus has a big part, and as Maclarie as Cyril Bates were a treat. Lillian Bayer has been especially engaged to act the part of the stepmother to "Jo" and she is remarkable suiting the part. Miss Colcord is to be commended for an admirable performance as the German Duchess.

"DOROTHY" SUNG AT CASTLE SQUARE

"Dorothy," a delightful three-act comic opera by Stephenson and Cellier, is the offering at the Castle Square Theatre this week. The piece was one of the most popular that ever had a revival awakens great interest. Miss Clara Lane continues to hold the centre of the stage and the hearts of audiences. Her acquaintance with every role of every production and her finished work as to voice, stage presence and footwork has impressed itself particularly upon the weekly first-nighters. In the role of Dorothy this week, she is seen at her best. J. K. Murray and Harry Gilfoil do excellent work as Sherwood and Wilder. George Shields is a dignified and powerful-voiced Duke Louis Le Baron is rather weak as an actress, but makes up for the defect with her rich contralto voice. Otis B. Thayer created laughter as the sheriff's officer and Maud Earl was a pleasing Phyllis. Hattie Belle Ladd is an amusing Mrs. Privett. The chorus of thirty does excellent work.

"SPRING CHICKEN" ON FINAL WEEK

Richard Carle entered upon the final week of his engagement at the Colonial Theatre last evening. Paris and inhabitants go hand in hand in the production and there is trouble from the moment the play begins until the final curtain falls. And the storm centre is just over the head of the luckless Rose, who thinks she has the best thing that Richard Carle has ever played here. Mr. Carle is a perpetual surprise. He springs a joke or two in the most startling manner, and one never knows where the lightning of his humor will strike next. The specialty work and dancing is bizarre, and the singing is of that high class that Mr. Carle has established in the operatic productions which he has brought here. His voice is not a great one, a nightingale, so far as he himself is concerned, but he has a good one around him.

"AVENGER" THRILLS BOWDOIN SQUAREITES

"The Avenger" is the thrilling melo drama which made a hit yesterday afternoon at the Bowdoin Square Theatre, and staged by the stock company, which is headed by Arthur Byron and Miss Ethel Harrison. Miss Harrison, in the character of the adventuress, proved to be a finished actress. She is beautiful, has an excellent voice and her gowns are stunning. As the name implies, "The Avenger" tells a thrilling story of a man who, wronged in early life, seeks vengeance and helps the cause of justice.

GIRL ACROBAT TURNS TRIPLE SOMERSAULTS

LITTLE MEMBER OF GROUP AT KEITH'S FURNISHED MAJOR PART OF WORK IN BIG BILL.

Little Florence Metzetti, the light-footed star of the Metzetti acrobatic troupe, who rounds of applause for herself and for the troupe at Keith's this week for the ground and lofty tumbling she executes in such graceful and daring manner. Her star act is turning a triple somersault in midair, she turns single and double somersaults as easily as an ordinary person walks, alighting on her dainty feet like a feather. The troupe contains eleven people, but the little girl was the major part of the act all by herself.

Miss Norton and Paul Nicholson have a new comedietta, "Kiss a Girl," in which they do light fancy singing with ridiculous exaggeration, quarrel, make up and act generally as any excitable young couple is supposed to do.

Four male singers under the ambitious name of "The Quartette," displayed considerable right to the title, having fine voices and a well-selected programme.

Avery and Hart put on a good representation of Williams and Walker's familiar old darkey specialty, and another pretty, prime concert makes its usual hit. The Musical Avolos get all the music there is out of four saxophones. Mr. and Mrs. Arnaut Barry make fun with a new skit, "The Village Constable." Knight Brothers and Marion Sawtelle have a dancing act that is different from any other, and it's good at that. Other good acts round out the bill.

HUNDREDS BOW IN GRIEF OVER ROSATTO'S BIER

Hundreds of sorrowing friends, high police officials and men from the ranks of the department attended the solemn high mass of requiem over the remains of the late Lieutenant John B. Rosatto in St. Mary's Church, Warren street, Charlestown, to-day. Six of his brother officers in full uniform acted as pallbearers, while twenty-one patrolmen in uniform escorted the remains to the church.

The services were impressive. Rev. Phillip J. Gormley was the celebrant, Rev. A. D. Malley deacon, and Rev. Henry E. Murray subdeacon. Music was furnished by the regular choir, assisted by Thomas E. Clifford.

Evidence of the esteem and popularity of the late police official was attested by the crowd that filled the church and later followed the funeral cortege to Calvary Cemetery. There were hundreds of floral offerings.

Lieutenant Forrest Hall of the Joy street station was in charge of the arrangements, and he was assisted by Sergeants Jeremiah Sullivan and George Carr. The pallbearers were Lieutenants William Allen, James Canner, Rufe Fessenden, John Clark, William Highland and George Dexter.

Among the police officials who attended the services were Superintendent William H. Pierce, Captain Lawrence Cain, Captain Otis Kimball, Lieutenant Daniel Ritter, Lieutenant John Brickley, Lieutenant James O'Neil and Inspector "Jack" Burr.

"FROU FROU" WELL PLAYED

Lillian Lawrence has another enthusiastic reception at the Park Theatre last night, where, during the remainder of the week, she will be seen in "Frou-Frou." Matinees are to be given on Thursday and Saturday.

For the second week of Miss Lawrence's engagement next Monday, the offering will be "In the Bishop's Carriage," one of the successes in New York.

FUNNY BURLESQUERS CROWD THE PALACE

The continuous bill at the Palace Theatre is up to the brightest since the Summer season began. The stock company has been greatly strengthened. The burlesque, "The Sunburst Picture," is a funny scene in a doctor soon, and "The Turnstile" is quite a bull sight. The vaudeville part presents the Demonella Brothers, comedy acrobats and contortionists; Bessie and Ernest, German comedian; Sing Fong and Yuen Sing, comedy acrobats; Joseph Adelon, impersonator; Arthur Pond, singing comedian and buck dancer; Held and Hamilton, clever artists; Winona and West, comedy juggler; May Bryant, Rice and Prescott, West and Williams and the Palatograph.

PROGRAM FOR BOSTON'S OLD HOME JUBILEE

The official program for the celebration of Boston's Old Home Week was given out to-day. It is to last from July 28 to August 3, and it is expected that there will be thousands of visitors in the city from all over the United States and Canada.

There will be family, school, college and association reunions of all sorts; military manoeuvres and parades, civic, trades and labor parades, pilgrim parades, religious and patriotic observances, river carnivals, veteran firemen's muster, receptions to the governors of New England and other distinguished guests, illuminations, concerts, dedications, athletic tournaments, automobile parades and runs, wheelmen's outings, old-time sports, baseball games, rowing regattas, yacht races and other aquatic sports, a fishermen's race, harbor and police excursions, concerts, inspection of warships, balloon ascensions, fireworks exercises, bonfires and exhibitions by the fire department, and schools.

The official programme is as follows:

Sunday, July 28—Founders' Day. Dedicated to Blackstone, Winthrop and the founders of Boston.

Monday, July 29—Patriots' Day. Dedicated to Adams, Hancock, Revere and the patriots of the Revolution. Big New England veteran firemen's muster.

Tuesday, July 30—Greater Boston Day. Dedicated to the suburban communities.

Wednesday, July 31—New England Day. Dedicated to the people and institutions of the New England States. Grand civic and trades procession.

Thursday, August 1—Massachusetts Day. Dedicated to the people and the institutions of Massachusetts.

Friday, August 2—Women's Day. Dedicated to the public-spirited women of Boston and the State.

Saturday, August 3—"Militant Day." Dedicated to the defenders of the commonwealth. Mobilization and parade of State militia.

600 FORESTERS TO ATTEND ORPHEUM

Six hundred delegates, national and State officers of the Foresters of America, gathered here in State convention, will attend the performance at Percy Williams's Orpheum to-morrow night. Several hundred seats have been reserved for the Foresters and the visit to the Orpheum promises to be one of the most enjoyable features of the convention.

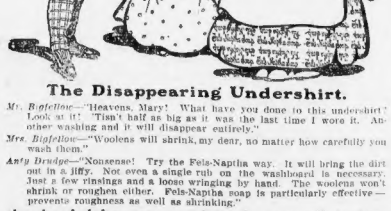
Nobody can effectively imitate the Fels-Naptha easy way of washing.



The Disappearing Undershirt.

Mr. Bigfellow—"Heavens, Mary! What have you done to this undershirt? Look at it! 'Tisn't half as big as it was the last time I wore it. Another washing and it will disappear entirely."

Mrs. Bigfellow—"Woolens will shrink, my dear, no matter how carefully you wash them."

Anty Drudge—"Nonsense! Try the Fels-Naptha way. It will bring the dirt out in a jiffy. Not even a single rub on the washboard is necessary. Just a few rinsings and a loose wringing by hand. The woolens won't shrink or roughen either. Fels-Naptha soap is particularly effective—prevents roughness as well as shrinking."

Do you understand Fels-Naptha soap?

It is like your sewing-machine—in that it saves labor and does the work better.

No woman who understands how to use the sewing-machine would go back to the time-waste and drudgery of hand-stitching. No woman who understands Fels-Naptha would go back to the washboard drudgery and scalding nuisance of the old way of washing clothes.

Fels-Naptha is more than a different kind of soap—it is a different way of washing. Which is what we mean when we ask if you understand Fels-Naptha.

You don't boil the clothes; you don't even use hot water; you don't stir the clothes; you don't even do much rubbing on the board. All the hard labor you used to do yourself to loosen the dirt is done by Fels-Naptha soap. Think of how this saves you and the clothes.

With a white wash, you simply wet the clothes, rub the Fels-Naptha soap on them, then put the pieces in the tub with just enough lukewarm or cold water to cover them. In a half hour, the Fels-Naptha will loosen the dirt; a little rubbing and a thorough rinsing will take it all out. And the clothes will be whiter and sweeter than they ever were with boiling and hard rubbing.

The Fels-Naptha way is easy to understand—simply follow the directions on the red and green wrapper.

The failure of imitations emphasizes the worth of Fels-Naptha.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

CHICAGO, May 21.—Boston and Chicago will meet in their fourth and last game here this afternoon. The series now stands two to one in favor of the Sox, but the Pilgrims will try their hardest to make the series a break even.

Nick Altrock, who won the opening game for the locals, will be sent to the firing line again by Manager Fielder Jones, while Ralph Glaze or Bill Dineen will probably work for the visitors. There is a possibility, however, that Jesse Tannehill, who was so effective in the first game, which went ten innings in Chicago's favor, will pitch for the Bostons again, as he usually wins over the Sox.

The Chicagos retaliated against the Bostons yesterday for the shutout given them Sunday, and won by the same score as did the Hub team, 4 to 0.

Frank Smith, who is at present the most successful pitcher on the local team, was on the rubber, and registered his ninth victory of the season. He kept the Boston hits well scattered, and while seven bases (Boston had three on third) he was as steady as a rock.

Prusitt pitched a good game for Boston, and caught many Sox off base.

SAYS LONGBOAT NEVER BROKE A. A. U. RULES

"Tom" Longboat never received one cent for any race he ever ran," declared Frank Biglings, of Montreal, to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter. Biglings, a long distance runner himself, is at present staying in Boston. He is a nephew of "White Eagle," the famous long-distance runner of the Caughnawaga tribe of Indians located near Montreal.

Biglings was indignant over the rumored charges of professionalism made by the A. A. U. against Longboat.

"In all the races I ever took part in with Tom he was never guilty of professionalism. I have no hesitancy in saying that there is a movement on foot to turn Longboat out of the amateur class for other reasons than that he accepted money for racing. Not the least bit of proof has been shown that he has broken the rules of the A. A. U. The only reason I can assign for these charges is that he is an Indian and a world-beater. Why, he could have beaten his record in the recent Marathon run in Boston by five minutes."

Biglings, a fellow-Indian, for 7 limes raced against him many times.

A new bunch of ball tossers face the Doves this afternoon, when the St. Louis Cardinals, after getting three maulings at the hands of the Giants, come over to the Hub for a series of three games, and the Mound City lads will be lucky to get a smell of any of the games if Young's men live up to their regular standard.

To the fans it will be an entire new outfit to look over, Manager McCloskey brings here as the only recognized one will be "Eagle Eye" Beckley, who will be displaced in the game, in spite of his many years' service.

Jake will be found playing the first bag when many of the present day colts are on the shelf.

The team has some new twirlers who are doing under league ball for the first time, but no Mathewsons have been seen in the line up as yet.

They gave the Giants plenty of work jump and the play probably saved the game.

Our old friend Chick Fraser helped things by passing three in the fatal seventh and they all scored on Brain's double.

The work of Ritchie at second was the best second sacking seen on the ground this season.

A few more good bunters like Beaumont would help a lot when inside playing was needed.

Brain did some brainey work when he was caught going to second on his hit, scoring Howard. He kept the Cubs busy after him, and also Ritchey, on third, had them watching him. As a result Brain got to second.

Little Johnny Evers had his shoe ripped to pieces by Bates's spikes when he stole second and he had to retire for repairs

GIANTS AND CUBS WILL FIGHT IT OUT FOR FLAG

BY WILLIAM F. KIRK.

There are two clubs, two baseball clubs,
Fighting with vim and science.
Oracle, will it be the Cubs
Or will it be the Giants?
—From the Lays of Coogan's Bluff.

NEW YORK, May 21.—If form is to be considered in making baseball prophecies—and at that form doesn't cut much cloth in our national game—the race in the National League this season will be a duel between the New York Giants and Frank Chance's Chicago hustlers. The series of three games which starts to-day may go a long way toward deciding a pennant winner.

The team that won the National League championship last season, only to lose its laurels in the post-season series with Comiskey's White Sox, looks fully as strong this year as it did then. Some of the younger members of the club have gained experience with no loss of speed or ginger, and no man on the team can be said to have gone back on account of age's handicap. Chance's lads are all young.

McGraw's Giants, it must be remembered, present a much more formidable front to-day than they did in 1906, when their pitchers, especially Mathewson, were not at their best. This big chap Matty is there again, working with all his 1905 skill and superb natural ability. Several of the critics have said in recent articles that Matty has "come back," but in reality there is no "come back" about his present performance. He didn't have to come back, as he needed was his health. Last season he was off an inflating, this year he is full of red blood and confidence. Watch him.

McGraw's Same Old Team.

As McGraw's team stands to-day it is the same old, easy-running machine that swept its opponents off their feet two years ago and ended a glorious season by outclassing the Athletics and winning the world's championship. If there is any difference it is for the better. Shannon and Seymour have strengthened the outfield, the former with his splendid base-running and the latter with his big right. Bill Dahlen is playing better ball this season than he has played for some years. Devlin is faster than ever before, Corcoran has fitted into the infield like a table into a gilted man's mouth, and big Bowerman is playing a great game at first base. Bresnahan is on his toes behind the bat, ever the master of the situation. And the pitching staff, where can we find a more formidable staff?

To-day there will be plenty doing at the Polo Grounds, when the Cubs are slated to bring their wad and spend a few friendly hours with the McGrawheimers. "Three-Finger" Brown will be there in all his glory, Manager Chance will revert around the free bag with ginger to distribute, Johnny Kling will be on hand to stop in his old graceful style, and if Steinfeldt will do some grunting and jerky base-running around third base, Small we gather he is the bluff? We shall.

Respect Chance's Club.

The Giants make no secret of the fact that they respect Chance's club. Several of the members have admitted that Chance has the team they will have to beat. They believe this because they know that the Westerners use the same ammunition the Giants use, always favoring heady ball and base-running on the bases, hitting when hits must be had, like good baseball at all times. With outfielders and infielders about on a par, with Kling and Needham and Jerry the backcatchers, the Giants a few points to the good in the pitching department and two managers that never say die, it should be a great battle.

SPEEDY HORSES UNDER HAMMER AT READVILLE

By Edward E. Cogswell.

HEADVILLE RACE TRACK, May 21.—At sharply 11 o'clock Auctioneer John Bain opened the Fasig-Tipton sale by calling for bids on the first of the 300 horses listed to go under the hammer here to-day, Wednesday and Thursday. A big crowd was gathered under the tent, some for the purpose of secreting racing prospects and likely futurity winners, or for use on the speedways, while others graced the occasion by their presence merely as spectators desirous of watching the transfer of the equines into new hands.

As the sale progressed it was evident that horses brought every cent that they were worth. Especially did those having trials to going this season to the mile bring forth spirited bidding.

The pacing gelding Johnny Smoker, 2:12¾, was the first of the choice ones to create a stir. He is entered in a 2:06 proposition, and has been entered through the Grand Circuit in his class.

Speedway Star.

Euchre Prize, 2:26¼, caused the buyers to warm up, as she has been one of the trotting stars over the New York speedway, and pulled a matinee wagon a mile in 2:12, so that she was not only figured good for matinee racing, but to go after the real money with.

A sure enough prize was the stallion Flexo, 2:14¾, that last season finished a close second in 2:08¾. He was sold by the estate of Leo Mermod, and it was only through the death of the latter this trotter happened on the market. Mr. Maynard considered him the best racehorse he ever owned.

"Long Shot" Cox's consignment attracted a lot of attention, particularly Frank Rain, 2:13¾, Bodie K., 2:13½, and Alun S., 2:09¾.

A. H. Merrill worked hard to secure the high dollar on his chestnut trotting gelding, being Horace Wilkes, with a trial of 2:11¾, and a half in 1:04½, considered one of the best green trotters in the country with 2:04¼ as his record, with a trial of 2:08, and Tenney S., 2:14½.

A. C. Purtoch disposed of the prominent speedway pacer Big, 2:12¾, that has only a single defeat marked against him this year; Sugar, 2:10, Sampson, 2:09¾, and Carbode, 2:13¾, while his brother Wee, sold long ago, has a mile to his credit, 2:10¾, and a green pacer.

The closing out of the Muster Hill Farm horses was the opportunity for horsemen to get likely green trotters into money class with breeding to develop into money winners on the turf.

After Hill's Boy.

Hill's Boy, 2:22¼, caught the eyes of those looking for a driving horse of perfect manners, ready to take part in the matinees or good in his class. Louise E., 2:14¾, was another well known to the local speedway followers, and the bidding on her showed that many were anxious to add her to their stable.

Among the others sold during the day were General Starr, 2:11½; Margaret, 2:12¾; Private Maid, 2:13¾, with a record way qualifies; Lee B., 2:13¾; Rowello, 2:09¾; Evalyn, 2:16½; Vesta Wilkes, Colonel, 2:18½; Hilgar, 2:15¾; Hosely, 2:13¾; Paris, 2:12½; Rosemont, 2:14¼, by Dresser, 2:14¾, in the futurities; Revello, a Franklin Field speedway favorite, and consignments from the Gatcomb, Dain and Ritter stables.

WANT SQUIRES TO MEET WINNER

TONOPAH, Nev., May 21.—With George Siler's acceptance as referee for the Hardy-Schreck fight at hand and all arrangements for the finish fight on Memorial Day complete, Promoters Brown and Johnson of Tonopah are turning their attention to Bill Squires, the Australian wonder.

Jack Curley, acting as matchmaker for Brown and Johnson, will leave to-day for Prince, where Squires is in training and in an attempt to secure his signature to a set of articles to meet the winner of the Memorial Day fight on July 4.

Curley declares that they are acting on strong information from Prince that Coffroth has practically abandoned his hopes of holding a fight, and that Prince has offered a $15,000 purse for the match. The club will give Squires $1,000 to defray all training expenses. From present rumors that have come out of Prince regarding the Burns-Squires fight it looks as though Tonopah will not have a match time securing Squires.

TEST FOR SPRING WHEELS IN AUTO RACE

By J. C KERRISON.

Expositors of various spring wheels are to have another opportunity to prove the virtues of their devices next month in a 300-mile race from Paris to Nice and return. It has been asserted that many of the stops due to derangements of the car mechanism in last year's experiments were indirectly caused by the want of sufficient resiliency of the spring wheels, this year all stops due to mechanical derangement will be charged against the wheels. There will be four classes, with a maximum weight and piston bead area for each. The round trip will be made in eight stages, and there will be a two days' exhibition of the competing machines at Nice.

The following bicycle and motor cycle events have been definitely scheduled:

May 19, Valley Stream, L. I., Century Road Club Association's 15-mile handicap road race; open. May 20, Manhasset, L. I., New York and Brooklyn Motorcycle Club's joint hill climbing contest; open. May 26, Long Island City, N. Y.; Irish American A. C.'s two-mile handicap at Calvary Park; open. May 30, Hicksville A. C.'s bicycle and athletic meet; open. May 30, Atlantic City, N. J., Atlantic City Wheelmen's twenty-five-mile road race; open. May 30, Cleveland, O., handicap road race; open. May 30, Detroit, Mich., Detroit wheelmen's annual. Belle Isle handicap road race. May 30, Salt Lake City, Utah, annual twenty-five-mile handicap road race; open. June 30, July 1 and 2, Paris, world's championships.

In addition to the foregoing, two events have received sanctions from the so-called National Federation of Amateur Cyclists. They are the Park Circle (Buffalo) 24-hour mile handicap, May 19, and the Bay View Wheelmen's annual Irvington-Millburn handicap road race. This is a slap at the National Cycling Association, which recently announced itself as in control of racing, and will doubtless bring about some decided action. As the last-named organization is in fraternal accord with all other amateur allied bodies, both in this country and abroad, it will probably assert its opposition by disqualifying every rider who takes part in the two events and those who accept "sanction" for any others from the N. F. A. C.

Short circuits which seem totally impracticable are sometimes caused by the particles of emery which have lodged where they will do the most harm. Emery paper should not be used about a car. Sandpaper is to be had in many grades and surfacing of it is not a good conductor of electricity, as emery is.

A touring car can mean only one thing—a car with a touring body, exactly as specified in the manufacturer's catalogue. Some people are inclined to forget this.

Though limited to twelve starters, the twenty-four hour automobile endurance race to be contested at Philadelphia next Friday and Saturday promises to be the greatest event ever known in the history of automobiling outside of Europe. Considerable interest has been aroused in the race affair over the Long Island course. There have been fifty and one-hundred mile events which have been highly entertaining. Three fifty-mile races were decided on Point Breeze track last Fall. But of them all, this contest should prove the finest ever. So great has been the inquiry for entry blanks and conditions that the race secretary has been compelled to announce that not more than twelve cars will be allowed to start. This guarantees every car a fair show and prevents crowding.

WHERE YOU CAN BUY ANY MAKE PIANO ALWAYS AT A SACRIFICE

No one ever paid half as much for a new piano here, no matter what make, as it would cost them at any retail piano house in New England.—We don't pretend to make our prices less than cost, but we do claim that the prices we quote on these pianos are the lowest ever made in the history of business, long agreement that other interests cannot be damaged in the slightest degree by the sale of these pianos. Under the terms of the Piano Trust, but we have some "collection Combines" and that is the reason we can quote prices that we can on Trust Pianos. You know the Trust Combines have agreed to advertise their own makes at not less than the minute that did such a thing one would sound their own death knell—for they would then show to the ever watchful buying public that the Trust Agreement was maintained by Trust contract agreement were fictitious, and that the Combines would secretly cut prices and demoralize their own agreement and deceive the public. We don't get the piano bargains of your life here this week. Buyer only yourself.

Bargains Beginning Monday, May 20.

Are exceptionally good—Many beautiful high grade pianos which for this week only will be sold at very low prices, lower than usual. They have been put into the best condition by our piano experts and are fully guaranteed. These pianos are taken in on new pianos, will be auctioned—If you don't get the piano bargain of your life here this week Buyer only yourself.

SUBSTITUTION

It Cheats YOU, the Purchaser. Don't Endure It. Denounce It

There is complaint by legitimate manufacturers of all kinds that business is injured by the dishonest practice of "substitution."

The substitution man is he who tries to make you take something else, which he calls "just as good," when you ask for a first-rate article.

It is a fact, of course, that the better class of merchants, druggists, etc., despise substitution, and would not be guilty of it. If they haven't got the thing demanded they say so.

The substitutor is a man who knows about what you are willing to pay for a thing, and then tries to sell you something else not one-tenth as good, which he buys for less than one-half the price of the real article, AND ON WHICH HE MAKES A BIG PROFIT.

This substitution evil extends to all lines of business. If a man establishes a famous reputation for a certain kind of chocolate, if his name is well known, that name represents to him a fortune, millions of dollars perhaps, AND HE CAN'T AFFORD TO HURT IT BY PUTTING OUT BAD GOODS.

The same is true of a man who has a reputation for making any other high-class article, from a grand piano to a cake of soap.

The first-class manufacturer, whether he deal in mattresses or medicines, has put his time, his intelligence, his fortune, the energy of his whole life into building up a reputation BASED ON ACTUAL VALUES.

The man guilty of substitution is simply a dishonest person, trying at the same time to swindle the purchaser and to swindle the manufacturer who has created a demand by giving real value with his merchandise.

There are remedies sold to be applied externally, in many of which the important ingredient is pure alcohol of high grade. The man who tells you that he has something else that he makes himself just as good can save one-half in the cost by using wood alcohol instead of good alcohol. But you rub into your skin an actual poison which may do you as much harm as the genuine article might have done good.

In other preparations the entire expense is due to the use of expensive drugs. The man who practices substitution gives you an article from which the expensive ingredients are omitted. YOU MIGHT AS WELL TAKE SO MUCH SAWDUST.

A man asking for a French buggy, or a Howard watch, could not be fooled by plausible talk into taking a buggy or watch of inferior make.

It is just as foolish to allow substitution to be practiced upon you in regard to any other recognized article with a big name and reputation back of it.

The antitoxin which doctors use in diphtheria cases actually cures diphtheria. The results are so wonderful that diphtheria no longer bothers the doctors at all. But a substitution for the real antitoxin, if such were offered, would not only be robbery but murder, as the child victim of such substitution would inevitably die.

We have written before on this matter of substitution, and shall write again. The public, the buyers, alone can kill substitution and the swindling which goes with it. If every person making a purchase would immediately walk out of a store in which the substitution habit shows itself, substitution would soon end.

The man who tries to make you take an inferior article instead of the thing you really want, adds insult to robbery. He admits that he thinks you do not know what you want, and that you haven't very much brains anyhow. He imagines that you can be changed by the last words you hear, that because he offers to sell you for a few cents less an utterly worthless substitute you will take that in place of what you actually want and need.

If you ask a man for a silver dollar, and he offers you one "equally good" and very much like it in appearance, but made of lead, you would laugh and stop doing business with the man permanently.

Such a man would be no worse than any of the other men who regularly practice substitution.

SUCH MEN SHOULD BE TREATED SIMPLY AS COUNTERFEITERS AND NOT AS BUSINESS MEN.

The American Point of View in the Longshoremen's Strike

It Is Not Especially Favorable to Foreign Steamship Lines

The strike of longshoremen in New York has greatly inconvenienced business men, whose transactions are interfered with, and workingmen who, instead of a small wage, have been getting NOTHING. It is to be remembered that this strike represents principally the effort and the determination of foreign shipowners to hire labor in America AT THEIR OWN PRICE.

The foreign shipowner boasts that he can do a shipping business for a cost so low that Americans cannot compete with him. He seems to have made good his boast. Certainly American shipping amounts to very little.

Should the foreign shipper be allowed to regulate absolutely prices paid longshoremen on this side of the water? Is it right that they should persist in paying exactly the same wages as the men have got for twenty years past?

In Europe these same shipowners HAVE GIVEN IN TO THEIR LONGSHOREMEN EVERYWHERE AND PAID HIGHER WAGES.

Mr. Ismay, of the White Star Company, proudly boasts that he will not pay the Americans any more. He sees no reason why they should not continue getting what they have been getting for twenty years.

Yet Mr. Ismay and all the other steamship owners have seen fit to enter a combination in defiance of law in this country, AND THEY HAVE RAISED PRICES IN MANY CASES TO DOUBLE WHAT THEY WERE A SHORT TIME AGO.

Labor union men are often unreasonable, like other men.

But if the foreign steamship lines have been compelled to increase the pay of their own workers at home, and if they have increased by a criminal conspiracy, as they have, ALL THEIR CHARGES TO TRAVELERS TO AND FROM THIS COUNTRY, are they really justified in insisting that the American longshoreman, working and living under American conditions, shall continue on the same old wages of twenty years ago?

Bishop Potter and others have taken the side of the strikers eloquently. The fact that these men have no guaranteed income, that they are sometimes compelled to work forty hours and even more at a stretch, and that they frequently spend an entire day waiting for work and get not a cent for their time, has aroused the sympathy of many.

We do not enter into these questions to-day, but confine ourselves to this one:

Should foreign steamship companies, having raised the wages of longshoremen everywhere else in the civilized world, take the ground that they will refuse any concessions on this side of the water and make good their boast of cheap steamship operation at the expense of American workmen?

She Discusses the Sabbath and Says We Are Wasting Time in Splitting Theological Hairs

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Copyright, 1907, by American-Journal-Examiner

I AM in receipt of two separate letters from readers of the AMERICAN who wish me to decide the question which has vexed theologians for ages, whether Saturday or Sunday is the right day to keep holy. One correspondent devoted several pages of closely written paper to the pros and cons of the case.

The wicked waste of valuable time and more valuable thought in a trivial matter struck sadness to my heart as I read these letters.

How can an earnest, sensible, life-loving human being in an era so full of important issues as this devote himself to an important consideration of this unimportant matter?

How can he so belittle the idea of the great and glorious Creator as to imagine that He cares what day is kept holy in his name?

The Gospel of Work

THE first part of that commandment which reads "Six days shalt thou labor and on the seventh shalt thou rest" is violated by thousands of idle people year in and year out, and nothing is said about it.

Why do we not devote more of our surplus vitality in urging people to work six days instead of wasting it in anxious fear that they will not rest upon the seventh, or if they do, that it is not the right day which they have chosen for the seventh?

Most of the evils which exist in the world to-day are the fault of the idle class—people who think work beneath them and resort to any means, fair or foul, to avoid laboring one day out of seven.

A great many of these idlers attend church regularly, and because they pay liberally for the maintenance of their church nothing is ever said to them regarding the broken commandment of "Six days shalt thou labor."

Yet, if a poor man, who toils like a slave six days in the week for a mere subsistence, is seen in a golf ground or tennis field on Sunday he meets with severe rebukes from the church-going community.

Each Day Is Holy

IT has always seemed to me that every day in the week should be kept holy—that is that whatever is done during any of these days should be done to the glory of God, and with the thought of universal good to humanity in our hearts.

I believe that one day out of seven should be kept free from the thoughts of moneymaking and strife and unrest. That day should be devoted to whatever will best build up the body and rest the mind and refresh the spirit.

Those who love to go to church, and feel that they are benefited by it, should go, but those who feel they are in closer communion with holy influences by remaining at home resting, reading, enjoying the companionship of their families and friends, or by going out in the pure air and enjoying the blessings and benefits of nature, are worshipping God quite as truly in their own way.

If a man has no opportunity for any recreation during the week days, if he is confined in an office or shop from early morning till late at night, I rejoice in seeing him amuse himself with any harmless sport or quiet game, with concerts or other entertainments which rest his mind and allow his body to relax.

People who have every privilege and opportunity for social and athletic enjoyment throughout the week I like to see reserve Sunday for more peaceful uses.

An Unimportant Question

THE man who has been brought up to believe that Saturday is the right day to rest from his labors must be just as good a Christian in the eyes of the angels as the man who believes Sunday is the Sabbath Day.

To vex ourselves and waste our strength on points of theology which have nothing to do with the progress of the world or the betterment of humanity, seems to be far more sinful than making a possible mistake in just which day was intended by the early historians to keep holy.

The God who created the universe would never descend to anger or indignation over a matter of this nature. It is the little toy deity made by man who is concerned over these small issues.

The Man Who Walks-- What Becomes of Him?

By Daniel W. Hogan

EDITOR BOSTON AMERICAN:

The Charles River Basin Commission has recently suggested, with accompanying plans, a promenade on the Charles river bank, rear of Beacon, now Back street. The plans show a twenty-foot pedestrian promenade, with sixty feet more devoted to tree-shaded park settees, grassed terraces and shrubbery, in all eighty feet—Back street being cut off by a six-foot wall.

Now comes the Transcript, inviting criticism in a full page article as to the fear that it may not be right to build this promenade without including a driveway.

That such a promenade is a self-evident need must be apparent to any for doubting Thomas from the fact that a Massachusetts commission presents it.

In the names of vehicleless humanity and mother nature, cannot the 95 per cent. of the citizens who have no other means of propulsion than "Shanks' Mare" have one short promenade where they can enjoy a restful hour undisturbed by the dirt and dust of horses and carriages or the chug-chug and smell of gasoline cars and their accompanying dangers?

The fortunate 5 per cent. who ride have monopolized about all of the park system roadways and promenades.

They already have a magnificent driveway on the other bank of the Charles, and the space of one house lot away is Beacon street; also, within a stone's throw, comes a fine double driveway, Commonwealth avenue, the natural, direct entrance to the Fenway. Then why this detour?

Consider, for a moment, some of the expenditures necessary to make this change of the plans:

At least forty feet more would be necessary to add a driveway, the space for which would have to come from the costly Beacon street estates or the more costly filling of a portion of the river, or partly of both. Then more expensive properties would have to be doomed to furnish suitable entrances and exits, and the consequent suits for damages of the abutters, who are now decrying the use of this place for such a purpose.

This unnecessary expense can be saved and a real, life-giving breathing place given to the citizens by adopting the suggestions of the commission, that this narrow stretch be devoted to "quiet, recreative use."

In conclusion I would suggest that when the recreative promenade is finally dedicated, the commission have their names cast on a bronze tablet, to be placed at either entrance, in commemoration of their thoughtfulness in behalf of the 95 per cent. who create, but don't ride.

Little Editorials from the People

HOW THE ELEVATED WORKS ITS MEN

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Having seen your recent article in regard to hours of work required of motormen and conductors in division 1, I, as a motorman in division 5, would like to state conditions in our division.

When the BOSTON AMERICAN in a recent article called the attention of the public to the conditions under which we work, the Elevated immediately pulled off all "regular extra" cars, on which a man works from 8 a.m. to twenty hours a day to earn $2.20, and gave all that work to the extra men according to their rating. When everything had cooled off, they shipped them back and made the hours equally as long as they were before your valuable paper exposed them.

Another important fact which I would like to bring to your attention is the recent increase in wages which was so prominently displayed in the public press.

It was stated that the company was so generous as to give $1.75 a day to their men in case they do not work. But let me explain.

A man is listed to report at 5 o'clock in the morning for work. He shows up and probably gets nothing to do and hangs around until 7 or 8 o'clock, when the men who are ahead of him come back from their runs, in extras, and get the work that is to be given out.

This man who has been laying around all the morning is probably sleepy or tired and he is excused to rest himself. When he comes back at that time he will probably find that some man behind him has gone to work, so he does not receive his $1.75.

On the other hand, he loafs around all day, from 8 in the morning until 4 in the afternoon when the p. m. extras are given out. He might be lucky enough to get any without work, but the chances are that he will be required to work until 12 or 1 o'clock that night. All he gets for that is $1.75, as the p. m. extras do not pay that amount.

Now, I want to ask if the public thinks it is fair to work a man under these conditions? I am quite sure that my friend from division 1 is not the only one who knows of accidents that have been due to want of sleep. You will readily see why I do not sign my name to this, so I beg to subscribe simply "MOTORMAN."
